Connally Says Excess Profits Levies Ought to Be Amended and Strengthened

Taft Opposes

Ohio Republican Says Morgenthau Proposal Demagogic

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau's proposal that corporation profits be limited to six per cent drew mixed reaction in the Senate finance committee today and Senator Connally (D-Tex.), a member, said present excess profits taxes "should be amended and strengthened."

On the other hand, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), another finance committee member, called Morgenthau's suggestion "a most unwise and demagogic proposal even for a war-time program."

Connally told reporters he was "not satisfied with provisions of the recently-approved revenue law as regards excess profits."

(The law increased the excess profits tax 10 per cent in each bracket, lifting the bottom bracket levy from 25 to 35 per cent on excess profits up to $20,000. The top bracket tax on such profits—those over $500,000—now is 60 per cent.)

(The new law permits corporations to figure excess profits either on the basis of invested capital or the basis of average earnings for the years 1936-39, inclusive.)

Morgenthau suggested that profits be computed on an invested capital basis, and Connally declared that the present alternative method of computation "allows too many loopholes for escape."

While he said he was not prepared to express full agreement with Morgenthau's proposed six per cent limitation because it still was in "the nebulous stage," the Texas senator declared that "I am strongly of the opinion that existing excess profits taxes should be amended and strengthened."

In a statement, Taft declared that many small businesses have slight invested capital and that if Congress declined to recognize the average earnings basis for computing excess profits "then we are likely to destroy all incentive to improve business conditions and service to the public."

"A good many of the dealers have been inspired for a long time with the theory that profits are wicked and represent a form of extortion from the public," he continued. "As a matter of fact, most profits represent the savings and operation which are effected by ability, ingenuity and persistence."

Nelson Favors Bill at Once
Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson, federal director of priorities, told Congress today that the administration price control bill should be enacted at once to prevent "an inflationary period" that would completely destroy us.

The executive director of the supply priorities and allocations board told the House banking committee that he knew of no other method of solving some of the problems created by the defense program.

For that reason, he said, the pending price control measure should be enacted "as rapidly as possible."

"If we are properly to handle a defense program of the size of our that will completely destroy us," and avoid an inflationary period "we must have some form of price control."

Morgenthau Urges Limit on Profits

With Price Administrator Leon Henderson (left) at his side, Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., told the house banking committee in Washington he believed that all profits in this country should be limited to six per cent during the current emergency.

F. P. C. Gives Out No Daylight Time Order

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission announced today it would not recommend the continuation, beyond September 28, of daylight saving time in any region of the United States.

This decision was reached, Commission Chairman Leland Olds said, after a canvass of the power situation throughout the country and an analysis of the effect of summer daylight saving in the southwestern region.

The chairman emphasized that today's announcement did not preclude the possibility that a resumption of daylight saving or its establishment in other areas, might be recommended if circumstances warranted.

Cedar Street Man Commits Suicide

Grant Barber, 69, Takes Illuminating Gas at His Residence

Grant Barber, 69, of 124 Cedar street, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in the kitchen of his home on Thursday afternoon. The body was discovered by his wife shortly after 4 o'clock that afternoon as she returned home after a shopping trip.

Coroner Frank J. McCord, who was called, issued a verdict of suicide and turned the body over to A. Carr & Son of Pearl street.

Coroner McCord said that no reason was known for Mr. Barber's act.

According to the police report, Mr. Barber, who was a painter by trade, attached a hose to the gas plate in the kitchen and then drawing up a stool seated himself near the gas range with his head resting on both arms on top of the kitchen table. He then placed the gas tube in his mouth after turning on the jet.

Mrs. Barber and a friend, Mrs. Styles, returned to the Barber home about 4:15 o'clock that afternoon and as they entered the house discovered the odor of gas. They entered the kitchen and found the room filled with gas.

The women called to a neighbor, Conrad Smith, of 129 Cedar street, who lifted Mr. Barber's body from the stool and placed it on a couch in the living room, and then called the office of Dr. Frederick Snyder, who notified the police department.

The police called the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., who sent the emergency truck to the house, and also the fire department was notified. The body was carried out on the front porch and the crew of the emergency truck and the firemen worked over the body with an inhalator for an hour in an effort to revive the man, but their efforts proved futile.

Dr. John Olivet, who had responded to a call, pronounced the man dead.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Barber is survived by three children, Harry Barber of Schenectady, Mrs. Hazel Barber, Wooden of Poughkeepsie and three brothers, James, Charles and Albert Barber, two sisters, Mrs. William Roberts and Mrs. Charles Yeager; four grandchildren. Funeral and burial will be private. This evening friends may call at the residence, 124 Cedar street, between 7 and 9 o'clock.

Board Discusses Extension Course For City Teachers

Idea of Subsidizing Social Studies in Favor of Combined Work Is Put Aside

The advisability of subsidizing an extension course for certain teachers in the Kingston public school system by payment of the required tuition was under discussion by the Board of Education last evening, but the matter was finally tabled on motion of Trustee Cook, after the matter had been discussed at great length.

A proposed change in the system of teaching social studies which is being advocated by the State brought up the discussion when the Teachers Committee reported that there had been a request made that the Board of Education pay the $15 tuition fee for a course which will be given in Kingston by Prof. Schmidt from the Albany State Teachers' College.

It has been proposed that the old method of teaching history, geography, civics and kindred subjects be abandoned and a new combined course be substituted. At the present time Mr. Laidlaw said it could not be definitely stated when or if the proposed method would be made compulsory but he said many schools were gradually putting the system into effect. It is now being used in the 10th grade in Kingston.

In order that teachers who instruct in these subjects may become familiar with the new system and fit themselves to properly teach under the newly proposed system, all members of the Board felt the teachers should take the course this season which will require two hours a week and will cost $15 for the course. Approximately 30 local teachers attended the first session and about 15 of town teachers.

Calls for Liberal Course
Superintendent Laidlaw explained that the system calls for a more liberal course of instruction. There will be less of a strict dividing line between history and geography for instance and the two subjects will be more or less combined with stress being put on one of the other of the subjects at some particular point in the life of the student.

The plan is to place a greater responsibility upon the student. More research work in the form of library reference work will be no definite course laid out by the state as is now the case but the course will be laid out locally and submitted to the state for approval. This will throw upon the teacher of the Social Program, as the new course will be known, more responsibility and in order to properly teach it has been felt that teachers who have not been trained under the present system should take extension work for this course.

In adoption of this liberalized plan of education many teachers feel that the need for additional extension work has been superimposed upon them and that the expense of the courses should be borne by the Board of Education. There was sentiment however expressed that every teacher should be required to keep up to date and by extension courses keep abreast of the times in order to retain full qualifications for the job of teaching. Changing conditions it was stated were to be expected and all teachers continue their education throughout their teaching years in order to remain qualified for their work.

Sees Gradual Application
Mr. Laidlaw said he was not so sure when the new plan might be (Continued on Page Nine)

492,000 Prisoners Claimed
Hitler's headquarters claims that the Nazis are continuing to destroy the four Red armies which the German high command announced several days ago had been surrounded east of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. The number of prisoners is said to have swelled to the colossal total of 492,000.

However, reports from Berlin say that even the Nazi press was in the doldrums through lack of news. Up until the announcement from the fuhrer's headquarters the newspapers hadn't even been able to tell a waiting public what had happened to those four armies which were being "annihilated."

By the way, the constant German use of that word "annihilated" finally drove me to appeal to an American newspaper colleague in Berlin to explain just what was meant. Annihilation to me has signified pretty much the end of all things, and it began to seem from the number of Russian troops "annihilated" in the Nazi announcements that there couldn't be any Bolshevik soldiers left.

The answer is that by annihilation—vernichtung—is meant complete elimination as a military force either by death or capture. That is, if an army is eliminated, there is nothing left which could be withdrawn and reorganized for further resistance. Well, it must be some solace to be alive though captured.

Moscow described the German claim of the wholesale capture of Reds in the Kiev sector as "a fresh Hitlerite fake." Time will tell which side is right.

Speaking of fakes, that is a curi-

Action Is Outgrowth of Hunting Mishap Near Lackawack Back in 1938

Earl P. West and William Stangle, two Napanoch residents who have been friends from boyhood, are involved in a negligence action in county court growing out of the shooting of Mr. West by Mr. Stangle back in 1938 in a hunting accident near the Merriam Dam at Lackawack.

On October 26, 1938, Mr. West who is a man in his late fifties, was hunting gray squirrels on the hillside above the Lackawack dam when he was shot and severely injured by his boyhood companion. Today they were involved in a lawsuit in which Mr. West seeks to recover $3,000 from his former friend.

A jury was taken in court this morning and trial of the action was begun. Thomas J. Plunkett and Arthur B. Ewig appear for the plaintiff and LeRoy Lounsbury appears for the defendant.

Mr. West charges that he had gone hunting squirrels on the day of the shooting on lands near the Merriam dam job. At this point lands of Mr. West, Mr. Martin and Mr. Stangle join in a triangle. Plaintiff claims he had seated himself on a log in an open space in the woods to await the arrival of a squirrel. It is his contention that the woods were rather bare of leaves and it was a clear day and about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon when he heard a noise and was propelled to the ground on his face, a distance of six or seven feet from where he had been seated. The plaintiff claims he was on the lands of Martin about 50 feet from the West lands and about 84 steps from the defendant's land.

Sight Affected
After the shooting Mr. West was unable to see but as he was on the ground he claims he recognized the voice of Mr. Stangle. Mr. Stangle who was attracted to the scene by the shouts of West, according to Mr. West said "my God Earl I shot you" and then offered to get assistance. Mr. West claims he asked that the first aid station on the Lackawack dam construction job be notified.

He was given treatment and taken to the Ellenville Hospital where he remained for 11 days. He later returned home but had a relapse and for over six weeks was in bed and had nurses in attendance.

It is the contention of the plaintiff that Mr. Stangle should have met the expenses of the incident and seeks now to recover $3,000. He charges that Mr. Stangle displayed negligence in shooting West. (Continued on Page 15)

Lehman Releases Gonzales Brothers

Men Serving Long Terms Will Be Sent Back to Native Spain

Governor Lehman today ordered release of two brothers serving long prison terms for a 1936 Ulster county robbery. He said they will be deported to their native Spain, the Associated Press reports.

He commuted sentences of Prudencio Gonzales, serving 15 to 25 years, and Jose Gonzales, 10 to 15 years, convicted jointly of holding up and robbing a construction camp in which many Spaniards were employed.

They have served five years and are subject to deportation which, the governor said, was recommended by the sentencing judge, the district attorney and Spanish consular authorities.

Wallace Heads Board Which Controls All United States Export Licenses

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The economic defense board headed by Vice-president Wallace further centralized control of economic warfare and kindred defense measures today by taking over the issuance of all export licenses in the $4,000,000-a-year foreign trade of the United States.

In line with President Roosevelt's order of September 15 to "intensify the policy of preventing shipments to axis-dominated countries," the economic defense board began absorption of the state department's division of controls, which heretofore has collaborated with the export control administration in regulating exports and issuance of export licenses.

Wallace's super-defense board already has taken over the previously independent and army-directed export control administration with the objective of integrating its functions into the broader work of the board.

At the same time the economic defense organization issued a supplementary "black list" containing the names of 300 persons and firms in the other American republics to whom no more shipments of American goods will be permitted.

Marlborough Bank Teller Identifies Baker as Forger

Wilson McLean Says Man in Queens Prison One to Whom He Paid Sum of $440

The law, as represented by B. C. I. Investigators John S. Metzger and Lynn Baker, apparently has caught up with the man who on November 26, 1940 is charged with having worked a financial transaction on the First National Bank of Marlborough that cost the bank $440.

Thursday, in New York city, Wilson McLean, teller in the Marlborough bank, positively identified one Warren V. Baker, of 255 East 54th street, New York city, as the man to whom he had paid the money in 1940.

Trooper Metzger said that there were indications that Baker had been forging checks, all for amounts under $500, on various banks in New York state, Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Bank books on banks in these states were found.

The trooper said that Baker was being held at the city prison, Borough of Queens, for a New York city swindle and that two warrants had been filed against his release. It was his arrest recently and an alarm that was sent out that took the officers and Mr. McLean to New York Thursday, when the identification was made. The Ulster county warrant, issued by Justice John Rusk, Jr., was filed at the city prison, with the others.

It is stated that Baker came to Marlborough on November 20, 1940, said that he was a produce dealer from Middle Hope and deposited $10 in the savings account of the Marlborough bank. On November 26, it is alleged that he brought a check, purporting to be certified by a Danbury bank, in the amount of $550 and withdrew $440 from his account. The certification on the check later proved to be worthless. A check for $197, drawn on the Larchmont Trust Co. and another for $264, on a Mt. Vernon bank, also were found to be worthless. The name of Russell Hulsizer was signed to the checks.

Ship Runs Aground

Boston, Sept. 26 (AP)—Coast Guards today said that the 3,018-ton freighter S. S. Essex, earlier reported sinking, had run "hard aground" at Block Island. A motor life boat from the Block Island Coast Guard station took off the Essex's crew. The sea was smooth except for a light swell. Coast Guards expressed the opinion the steamer was so hard aground she was "likely to stay there." Her skipper is H. Anderson of Floral Park, N. Y., and her home port is Baltimore.

Wickard Advises Caution

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Forecasting a period of peak farm prosperity, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard today advised caution in lending money to farmers. "We don't want to make the same mistake we made during the last war, and after the last war," Wickard told a conference of agriculture lenders here. "I'm sure we can avoid the runaway inflation such as we had during the last war but it is not going to be a popular thing to do."

Hicks Is Improving At Hospital; Wife's Funeral Tomorrow

Sheriff Says Man Displays Little Emotion When He Is Told His Wife Dies of Wounds

Edward Hicks, 24, employee of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady and former Kingston man, who police say shot his wife fatally in a cornfield off the Lomontville road Tuesday night and then fired a bullet from the .22 calibre rifle into his left chest, above the heart, is reported improving at the Kingston Hospital. His condition this morning was reported as "fair, slightly improved."

Hicks was placed under formal arrest, on a charge of murder in the first degree, by Sheriff A. F. Molyneux Wednesday afternoon. He will remain under guard at the Kingston Hospital until he recovers sufficiently to be taken to the Ulster county jail.

Sheriff Molyneux said that Hicks showed little emotion when told that his wife, the former Margery LeBlanc of Schenectady, died on Tuesday night from the effect of the numerous bullet wounds she had received. Hicks had no comment to make on the murder charge.

Mrs. Hicks' body has been removed to the Kilvin & Campbell Funeral Home, Schenectady. Funeral will be held from the late home at 436 Hegeman street, Schenectady, Saturday at 8:30 a. m. and in the Sacred Heart Church at 9 a. m. The Rev. Maxine Sorrell will officiate.

Ikkes Says Inventory Refutes J. J. Pelley

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Secretary Ikkes, the petroleum coordinator, said today a "factual inventory" had found a net surplus of only 5,192 rail tank cars available to haul petroleum to the Atlantic seaboard.

This finding sharply disagreed with a contention by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads that 20,000 idle tank cars were available for operation in the oil emergency.

The survey Ikkes quoted was made by the east coast transportation committee of the oil industry.

The Senate committee which investigated the oil situation in the east reported there was no shortage, that unnecessary alarm had been created, and suggested that restrictions on gasoline sales be lifted.

Reds Have New Drive In Control

Russians Also Render Parachute Troops Ineffective in Drive on Peninsula

Pressure Grows

Soviet Report Admits Nazis Increase Siege of Leningrad

(By The Associated Press)
Whole battalions of German shock troops have been blown to pieces by minefields in a strong attack on the Crimea, advises reaching London said today, and the Russians were reported to have the situation well in hand after stemming two Nazi assaults.

German parachute troops used in the attack likewise were declared to have been annihilated. In the siege of Leningrad, the Russians admitted that German siege armies were steadily increasing their pressure despite colossal losses, but declared that a series of battles had hurled the Germans back form several advanced lines.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, reported that Russian troops at one point on Leningrad's approaches had gained five miles and recaptured four villages. Nazi parachute troops and infantry were reported continuing the assault on the Crimean peninsula, battering fiercely at Soviet lines stretched across the bottleneck Perekop Isthmus, only five to eight miles wide.

Terrain Is Advantageous
The terrain was described as advantageous for the Russians, with numerous small lakes and marshlands forming natural defense barriers.

To the north, Adolf Hitler's high command reported that the destruction of four Red armies trapped east of Kiev was "progressing relentlessly," with the number of Soviet prisoners now standing at 492,000.

This claim followed an official Soviet denial of an earlier Berlin announcement that 380,000 Russian troops had been captured in the Kiev battle.

Calling the Nazi assertion "a fresh Hitlerite fake," a Red army communique reported:

"The fierce struggle is continuing on the Kiev front." The British radio, quoting a Moscow spokesman, said the Germans launched their initial attack on the Crimea Wednesday night, hurling tanks, mechanized infantry and a number of parachute troops into the assault after a heavy artillery bombardment.

"The Russians waited behind vast minefields," the account continued. "Whole battalions of Germans are said to have been blown to pieces."

"The enemy withdrew to reform, eight hours later. But they were caught in the fire of Russian long-range artillery from the isthmus and from the bay to the west of the isthmus."

"Just before noon yesterday, the German attack was renewed. One German infiltration was made in the Russian lines but it was soon surrounded and annihilated."

Oil Would Be Goal
Strategically important as the site of Russia's great Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol, the Crimean peninsula would also provide a stepping-stone for a German thrust into the Caucasus oil fields across the narrow mouth of the Sea of Azov.

Coincident with this reported blow to Hitler's invasion forces in the far south, Berlin admitted that the Russians were attacking with mounting fury on the north central front, apparently in the vicinity of Leningrad.

Unity Is Theme Governor Gives Talk to State's Merchant Marine Academy

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Full preparedness and "complete unity of purpose" in defense are necessary for preservation of the American freedoms, Governor Lehman told graduates of the New York State Merchant Marine Academy today.

His commencement address at Fort Schuyler, Bronx, stressed the need for a "militant faith" in the democratic system and imposition of a "voluntary self-discipline, more compelling and more effective than ruthless decrees of dictators."

Duffield Voices Feeling British Would Be Victors

Among newspaper men generally, where many facts are known that do not appear in print, the conviction is practically universal that Great Britain would win this war, Kingston Kiwanians were told at their noon-day meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday.

The speaker was James W. Duffield, veteran newspaper man and popular speaker on the New York Times Speakers Bureau. Mr. Duffield spoke before Kiwanians about 10 years ago on "The Making of a Great Newspaper," and was so well received that he has been recalled a number of times since, and was made an honorary member of Kingston Kiwanians.

His talk Thursday, listened to with close attention, was a general view of the war situation, with some comment on the course of affairs in the various countries involved, bits of humor and passages that rose to the height of eloquence.

The faithful message brought to King John of England, centuries ago—"The Devil is loose"—furnished the theme for the earlier part of his talk. "Today that same message is being carried around the world," Mr. Duffield said, adding, "It is no message of despair. The Devil has been loose many times in history, but always he has been sent back to Hell."

It was observed that history teaches that a dictator inevitably comes to the end of his rope. He eventually becomes a fugitive, prisoner or suicide, or falls a victim to the knife of the avenger.

Mr. Duffield gave to Great Britain the credit for holding aloft the torch of liberty in western Europe, almost alone. He found the morale of the British people to be beyond all praise, its fleet still holding command of the sea and its air force superior although outnumbered, with "ten British airmen able to make 25 German fliers turn tail."

Hitler's Boast Referring to Hitler's boast that he would be in London by August 15, 1940, the speaker declared that Hitler lost his opportunity to invade England when he failed to do so immediately following the defeat of France. Today he saw England not only defending herself but taking the offensive, with hundreds of bombings of military objectives in Germany and in the occupied countries.

"For 500 years victory has gone to the nation that has had command of the seas," said Mr. Duffield, and all that is sane and decent in this world endures in hope that this again will prove true.

Italy, with 300,000 men lost in the Ethiopian campaign at a cost to Great Britain of perhaps 2,000 men; with its air force "a joke," and its fleet continually on the run, was found to be practically "knocked out of the war." Mussolini was described as the "most dilapidated, humiliated and discredited figure among all the rulers of Europe."

France was declared to be on the verge of a revolution. Holland is in a serious condition, with 100 of its leading men seized as hostages. Martial law has been declared in Norway. Rivers of blood were said to be flowing in Yugoslavia as rebellion flared against German overlords, while Czechoslovakia is seething with unrest and resentment.

Matters of Significance All these things are profoundly significant of the terrific hate that smolders in the conquered countries and against that no government has ever won out in Europe, Mr. Duffield said.

The Japanese situation was seen as acute, and Japan was said to have "aroused the wrath of forces infinitely more powerful than herself," to have overreached herself. "One more step and the hurricane will be upon her," Mr. Duffield declared. What she will do no one knows, he added, but "probably she will stop where she is."

Mr. Duffield on his last visit to Kiwanis here foresaw war between Germany and Russia. He said that it was hard to learn the exact situation in the war that has now been raging between these two nations for 13 weeks, since "both are hopeless liars," but suggested that it was evident that Russia had not proved to be the easy pushover that it was predicted she would be. The Russian campaign was seen as having provided a tremendous break for Great Britain, giving her more time to make preparations and to secure aid from the United States. Every day spent by Germany in Russia is equal to a battle won by Great Britain, he said. Hitler was seen as having gambled all on his "last ace," with the chances all against his being able to win a long war.

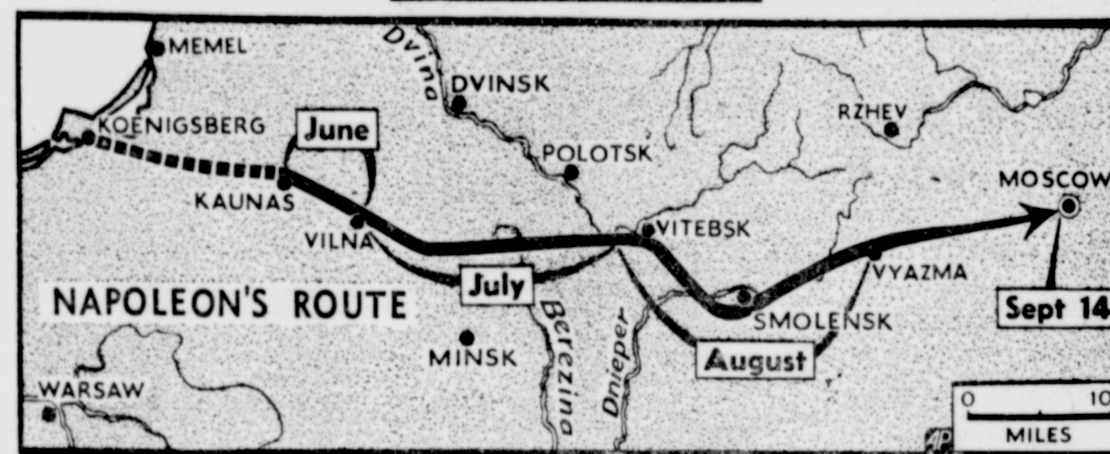

In conclusion Mr. Duffield said that it was the "wish of an overwhelming majority of the American people that Great Britain should win the war," but, more than that, "it is their determination that Great Britain shall win."

In the absence of the president and vice-president at the Kiwanis convention in Niagara Falls, Past President Pratt Boice presided Thursday. He called attention to a vase of very handsome and large dahlias at the speakers' table. They were grown by Walter Ostrander.

Napoleon vs. Hitler

Napoleon's horse and buggy legions traveled the road to Moscow in exactly 83 days. Hitler's mechanized army is still en route after three months. This is a bird's-eye view of the two trips, one in 1812, the other in 1941.

How Spies Code Their Messages

AP Feature Service

TESTIMONY of a star witness at the Nazi spy trial in Brooklyn revealed a complicated secret code plan which the witness, William G. Sebald, said Nazis used in communications with spies in the United States. Sebald, who testified he had become a counter-espionage agent for the United States after having been hired by the Nazis, explained that the code works like this:

12-89-3
1-39-23-1-4-6-22-25-3-39

1. The spy receives a harmless looking slip of paper full of numbers. Nothing in this a guy could be arrested for... but then—

Cablegram
Sept. 22, 1941
By all means read "Island in the Corn."
Gustavus

2. He receives this cable. Note the date, Sept. 22. Add month number (9), day of month (22), add 20 and you get a total of 51.

3. So he obtains the book, turns to page 51, and goes to work, taking the numbers slip from its hiding place. First number is 12. Top line, words 1 and 2 are "by February." Second line, words 8 and 9, third line word 3.

Chapter Five

BY FEBRUARY, Father had eliminated himself from the family circle, because in the month after his first return to Hasselmans at large he had, Doctor Burns declared, restored himself completely. The voice was once more without the slight edge pain had put upon it, the festoon of whisker on his face was again glossy, his step had the old grace. So Father traveled.

The second row of figures applies to letters in the top line of the book page. So, counting off letters from those figures you find that letter No. 1 is B. 39 is O. 23 is M, etc. The letters add up to "BOMBER INFO"—and the entire message reads:

By February First Return Large Bomber Info

Production and Promotion Would Aid Farm Incomes

Fredonia, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Intensified production and sales promotion of a variety of crops would swell both the farm income and agricultural importance of New York, asserts State Agriculture Commissioner Holton V. Noyes.

Urging less emphasis on milk production, Noyes last night informed the first annual Concord Grape Festival milk accounted for more than one-half of the state's $312,000,000 cash farm income in 1939.

Rating the state seventh in agricultural importance, Noyes said diversified production accounted for the remainder of the farm income. And could, if increased, permit New York to "crowd our sister states for first rank."

Absent-minded Professor Kerr Grant of Adelaide University in Australia has discovered he paid his last income tax twice.

Tickets Available For Byrd Lecture In City October 3

Wednesday evening the Lion's Club of Kingston held a special meeting of its committees on arrangement for the personal appearance of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd who will tell the saga of 56 men, Friday afternoon and evening, October 3, at Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

Achievements of his second Antarctic expedition will be revealed in the 9,000 feet of motion pictures with which he illustrates his talk.

The afternoon performance will be exactly the same as the evening. Admiral Byrd will appear in person both times. The afternoon showing will start promptly at 3:30 o'clock. Special low prices have been placed on the afternoon admission to give the school children of this city and rural area a chance to hear this noted explorer. Already many requests have come in for tickets from various schools throughout the county. Principal Van Wagenen of Woodstock has a group of 40 children coming in private cars. Principal Bernice Jansen of High Falls school has requested 25 tickets, transportation being furnished by the Mothers' Club of High Falls.

The Kingston schools and rural schools are being covered by the committee and by Friday 2,500 tickets will have been made available to the children of the county.

The evening performance will start at 8:30 o'clock. There are on sale now, 700 reserved seats for those who might wish them and plenty of other seats for everyone. Tickets are now on sale at: Connelly's Drug Store, Broadway; Schneider's Jewelry Store, Broadway Theatre building; M. Reina, 240 Clinton avenue; Station WKNY, Governor Clinton Hotel; Saugerties Motors, 300 Main street, Saugerties.

The proceeds are to be used by the Kingston Lions Club for social welfare work.

Iceland Is Key to Weather Forecasts

Reports Jealously Guarded
By Great Britain.

CHICAGO.—United States' occupation of Iceland isn't going to help the weather man a bit—despite the fact that the rocky island is the key point for long range forecasting for the entire North American coastline.

Dr. C. G. Roseby, assistant chief of research from the Washington weather bureau, points out that Britain has been keeping reports from Iceland's weather stations "a jealously guarded secret" since occupation of the island.

And Britain would be foolhardy not to do so, says Roseby. "The reason is simple. Icelandic reports would aid in plotting long range forecasts for eastern America, but they are of vital importance for day to day European forecasts."

"When I worked for Sweden's weather bureau," he said, "Icelandic conditions were the first thing we'd look for on the chart in making up our forecasts."

Rosby, who will remain on leave of absence from his Washington post until September to serve as director of the University of Chicago's new institute of meteorology, is the leading exponent of the air mass theory forecasting in this country. He believes that within the next 10 or 15 years the U. S. bureau will be able to extend accurate long range forecasting to 30 days or so.

Long range forecasting, he explained, is concerned—not with predicting each day's weather—but with assaying temperature and rainfall anomalies that will occur in each area.

"The five-day reports now are being used for agricultural and various industrial purposes, and eventually, when these and other uses become more widespread, man may become so adjusted to this long-range forecasting that he will consider it a necessity."

Hobby Yields 200 Ingots Of Aluminum for Defense

SUFFERN, N. Y.—A mysterious stranger with a mysterious hobby drove to the community aluminum bin in this village and deposited 70 pounds of pure aluminum molded into about 200 cakes the size of muffins.

The stranger, who was about 30 years old, gave his name as Edward Stryko of Suffern, and said his hobby for the last 10 years had been to collect old aluminum and melt it down in his furnace into small ingots. When the nation-wide drive for aluminum opened he decided to contribute his hobby to national defense.

However, when village officials decided to inquire further into his hobby, they were unable to find any trace of Stryko. He is not listed on the tax rolls of the village or of Ramapo township in the outlying areas and he seemed to be unknown in Suffern.

Parachutist Strategy Dates From Franklin

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Benjamin Franklin had the idea of parachute troops back in 1783.

"The Command and General Staff School Military Review" prints in its current issue the following excerpt from volume nine of Franklin's writings:

"Five thousand balloons, capable of raising two men each, could not cost more than five ships of the line; and where is the prince who can afford so to cover his country with troops for its defense as that 10,000 men descending from the clouds might not in many places do an infinite deal of mischief before a force could be brought together to repel them?"

Roosevelt Funeral Rites to Be Held; Burial at Tivoli

Service Will Take Place in East Room at White House for Brother of Mrs. Roosevelt

G. HALL ROOSEVELT

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt arranged a funeral service at the White House today for the first lady's brother, G. Hall Roosevelt, who died here yesterday at the age of 50.

After simple services in the historic east room at 3 p. m. (E. S. T.) the President and his wife will accompany the body on an overnight train to Tivoli, N. Y., where burial will take place in the family plot.

Both services will be private with only members of the two families and close friends present. Capt. J. C. W. Linsley, chaplain at nearby Fort Myer, was selected to conduct the White House rites. Hall Roosevelt was an aviation instructor in the World War; in private life he was an electrical engineer, banker, and transport executive.

The President cancelled his morning press conference and set his regular Friday afternoon cabinet meeting for 11 a. m. His only other engagement for the day was to receive the new national commander of the American Legion, Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. D.

After the burial service at Tivoli Saturday, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will go to the President's Hyde Park home for the week-end.

The highest grades of optical glass are now being produced in the United States, the Department of Commerce says.

Episcopal Church Plans Observance Of Youth Sunday

Sunday, September 28, will be observed throughout the country as Youth Sunday by the Episcopal Church. It is sponsored by the Division of Youth of the Church's National Council. On Saturday, September 27, 2:15 to 2:30 p. m., the Rev. Frederick H. Arterton, National Council's Secretary for Youth, will be heard on a nationwide broadcast to herald Youth Sunday over the red network—WEAF being the originating station.

The object in special services being planned according to the Rev. Arterton is "to acquaint adult church members with the part to be played by youth in the life and work of the church, and to clarify in the minds of the young people themselves, their share in church activities, especially in connection with the church's 10-year advance program known as "Forward in Service."

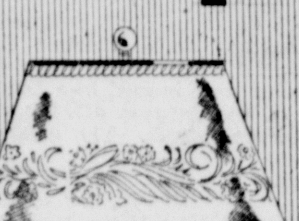

At St. John's Episcopal Church here the Sunday will be observed by a special service at 10:45 o'clock at which the superintendent of schools, Arthur J. Laidlaw, will preach the sermon. Young people will take part in the service.

A special all-youth offering is to be received signifying youth's co-operation in the entire program of the church; one-third to the devoted to extension of youth work in the Episcopal Church, one-third to a domestic and one-third to a foreign missionary project.

PROFITEERING

There have been reports lately of manufacturers making immense profits from war orders, reaching even 50 to 100 per cent, or more. Perhaps this is true in many cases. If so, it can hardly continue long. Neither the public nor the government can tolerate such profiteering. Action is under way now in Congress to limit war profits.

The whole idea that war is a grand opportunity for abnormal profits, tolerated unduly by the last generation, is changing now. "Up to this time," says a financial writer, "the hope was entertained that national defense would be a picnic, providing more jobs at higher wages, higher prices for producers of raw materials and higher profits for capital and management. In a word, the defense program was to be the answer to the prayers of almost a decade for a way out of the depression. Of all such thinking, little remains in the minds of thoughtful men and women."

How could there be prosperity and big profits, he asks, when we now have to devote 15 per cent of our energy to producing the instruments of destruction, and we shall soon have to double that figure? There can be real prosperity only when abundant goods are produced for useful purposes.

RAMADAN

The new moon rises and it is the holy month of Ramadan. In Egypt, as elsewhere in the Moslem world, the people fast during the day and feast after sundown. And ordinarily the feasts would be merry. Omar Khayyam, writing of this month in his Rubaiyat, says:

"So while the vessels one by one were speaking,
The little Moon looked in, that all were seeking;
And then they jogged each other, Brother!
Brother!
Now for the porter's shoulder-knot-a-creaking!"

But the porter will not be bringing from the cellar so much wine as usual now, nor will it be drunk with the usual merriment. For although Egypt is supposedly at peace, and has no feud with Hitler, nearly a thousand Egyptian civilians have been killed in the past year, and there is never any telling when the next wave of warplanes will sweep over Cairo dropping its deadly load of bombs. Hitler might even take a notion to blow up the pyramids, "just for the heck of it."

INDUSTRY AND W.P.A.

Someone has hit upon a simple and intelligent method of bridging the gap between W.P.A. and employment in private industry. This is what happens:

W.P.A. places selected men from its rolls in private plants, at no cost to employers, for periods of four weeks. If a man does a good job the employer puts him on the regular payroll and he is automatically off the W.P.A. list. If he does not succeed he returns to that agency with his former standing.

The New Republic reported recently that the plan had been tried out quietly for a number of months in Chicago and some other cities and had worked well. It is obviously fair, since it gives a worker a chance to return to private industry and to prove his worth to an actual employer while allowing the latter to learn the man's value to him without delay and without the longer and more expensive hiring routine.

American hospitals everywhere are overcrowded now. But that doesn't mean there are more sick people; it means people have learned the value of hospitals.

We may have price control and wage control, but how about voice control?

It grows more evident every day that the chief beneficiary of this war is Davy Jones.

There may be plenty of gas, but there's none to waste.

It seems to take about as many people to explain this war as it does to carry it on.

Apparently it isn't slack to wear slacks any more.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act) SEVERE GOITRE

In my student days operation for the severe form of goitre was performed in just a few large hospitals or clinics.

Before consulting an outstanding surgeon, the patient, in most instances, had been so afraid of operation that he had allowed the disease to become too far advanced for operation.

Gradually more surgeons began operating on this severe type and today practically all hospitals have surgeons who remove all or a part of the thyroid gland.

In former times also, if it were found that the patient had some other disease also, operation for removal of the thyroid was usually performed because the thyroid condition was always so urgent due to the delay in getting the patient to undergo operation.

What a different picture is seen today in this disease which wears the patient down to almost a shadow because the excess thyroid juice drives the body processes to work too rapidly. This is due to the fact the signs of severe goitre—rapid heart beat, trembling, loss of weight, sleeplessness—are now recognized early. By means of rest, and sometimes small doses of iodine, many cases do not require operation and, should operation be necessary, this rest treatment puts the patient in good condition to undergo operation.

Another great step forward in the treatment of this formerly dreaded disease is the way cases which have other diseases present also, are handled. As goitre patients are now discovered and treated early, there is not the same need for 'immediate' operation to save life and so surgeons can decide whether to operate at once in a case with some complication, or treat the complication first and then operate.

In the Lahey Clinic, Boston, Dr. B. Cattell reports in the Pennsylvania Medical Journal that 19,500 operations for goitre have been performed, half of which were for the severe type. A percentage of these cases had complications—heart disease, diabetes, pernicious anemia, wasting of the muscles, cancer. In some cases complete operation was performed immediately, in other cases a part of the gland was removed, and in others treatment for the complication was given before the operation was performed.

Goitre—Simple and Severe Types

Goitre is not just a lump in the neck. There are two kinds. One type is innocent or harmless. The other is dangerous and must be treated. Send today for Dr. Barton's latest booklet entitled "Goitre—Simple and Severe Types" (No. 112). Enclose ten cents with your request to cover cost of handling and mailing and address it to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman.

RATHER BAFFLING, AIN'T IT ADOLF?

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—It certainly takes Hollywood to cover a Senate investigation of Hollywood.

What the Hollywood journalists had to say on the findings of Sen. D. Worth Clark's committee to investigate alleged movie propaganda has some of the local talent gasping.

"Senate Investigation A Joke" read one of the headlines. "Senate Hearing Still a Big Yawn" said a Hollywood trade paper. A third blared: "Investigation in Deeper Bog."

When the Senate's "movie propaganda" subcommittee opened its hearings, Hollywood descended on Washington with a resounding thump. Committee members claimed that one trade paper (the Hollywood Reporter) had eight to ten reporters in town.

Some Guys Named Joe
That remains to be proved. I know some of the Hollywood Reporter gang, but the only stranger I saw around were Irving Hoffman, the Reporter's Broadway columnist and caricaturist; Jack Moffit, one-time movie critic of the Kansas City Star and more recently scenarist for Paramount; and a man named Alexander, whom I hadn't met before.

Add to these a few of the old stand-bys who ordinarily earn an honest penny reporting for the other film trade papers, and you will have all of the list that I could supply, under oath—but the way these boys filled the columns of their Hollywood sheets made the coverage seem something special.

To say the least, it was Washington's introduction to Hollywood coverage—and to say even less, it left some of the investigators a bit groggy.

After all, if you can remember when a story earned such a headline as "Nye Holds Floor All Day—Talks Lot, Proves Nothing," you are one memory jump ahead of yours truly. The story said something to the effect that the law of supply and demand seemed "to have been passed over the veto of Senator Gerald Nye."

"There's also the law of compensation," it continued. "That's the one which caused Senator D. Worth Clark to do a lap dissolve yesterday. He lapsed from the savor of a fair of a Mitch Leisen dress extra to the lost look of a W. C. Fields straight man when Senator Ernest McFarland (the only administration member of the committee), thought to be a stooge, revealed himself a Lone Ranger."

On The Cuff
That's good straight Hollywood talk, but it has the Washington boys so numb they don't know whether to sue or telegraph appreciation.

When one columnist suggested that the committee should investigate all purported propaganda pictures from inception to finished product, Hoffman said that the Senate would "be reading the tablecloths from Ciro's and the Brown Derby, and Gregory La-Cava will have to have his shirts laundered in Washington."

BABSON ON BUSINESS

AIRPLANE INVESTMENTS
Babson Advises Caution
La Guardia Field, New York, September 26—Readers ask me, "Why do not the stocks of the airplane companies, which have such tremendous backlogs of unfilled profitable orders, sell at higher prices?" Well, if you would like my frank answer and will not hold me or this newspaper responsible, here it is:

Tremendous Expansion
Closely approaching the fabled reproductive capacity of the housefly, production of United States aircraft has zoomed skyward in recent months. From a dollar value below fifty million annually in 1934, it is estimated that 1941 aircraft production will set a high mark not far from two billion dollars.

It is only natural that such growth has attracted a flock of admirers from the investment public. There has been so much talk about the expanding market for these war birds that investors and speculators, who do not know a prop from a tail fin, are buying these aviation securities.

Permanent or Temporary?
Public interest is directed especially toward the manufacturing end of the aviation industry. The big figures refer to the production of airplanes and engines. These, of course, are the things which go to build a military battle force. They are the immediate and visible results of a war of movement.

Those who are rushing to buy the securities of airplane manufacturing companies should focus their minds on the important fact that these companies are experiencing a temporary spree. The temporary nature of this spree should not be overestimated by anyone who takes his investment problems seriously.

When Will The War End?
It is true that production of aircraft and engines will probably not reach a peak until July, 1942 or early 1943. It is true that these companies are priority proof and the Government is giving them every consideration including great depreciation allowances. Every effort will be made by the Government to quickly settle their labor disputes. Yet, all these favorable factors cannot black out the temporary nature of the aviation boom.

In any consideration of the future, we should assume certain things: (1) War is not the ordinary pursuit of man. The present war may come to an end sooner than most people think, possibly in the winter of 1942-43. (2) We must be so bold as to assume that England and her allies will win the war. (3) A large air force will be maintained after the war in order to assure a keeping of the peace; but it will be much smaller than that which is currently being amassed.

Final Advice
Another reason why I like the commercial air transportation companies is because the smallest investor can buy a stake in the entire industry. Although you must invest in over 500 railroads to get a proper share in 95% of the railroad business, you need invest in only six air transportation companies—properly diversified—to have an ownership in 95% of the air transport industry. These companies are: American Airlines, Eastern Airlines, Transcontinental & Western Air, United Air Lines, Pan American Airways, and Pennsylvania-Central Airlines.

Therefore, I say to those who are willing to look beyond tomorrow to the day after tomorrow:—Hold a diversified group of the best air lines in the country. Leave the manufacturing companies to the nimble speculator. Have not more than 10% of your savings in any one industry."

What Air Stocks to Buy?

There is, however, a group in the aviation field which may well benefit from the plight that the manufacturing companies will find themselves in after the war is over. I refer to the air-transportation companies.

A great part of the technical advance made during the wartime will accrue indirectly to the benefit of the air transportation companies after the war. Manufacturers with dwindling contracts on their hands will be forced to seek business on a profitless basis in order to keep the plant operating.

Some day the Government will offer the very best of transportation planes to the air lines at sharp price reductions. I further predict that the post-war transport planes will be as different from those in use today as the present streamlined coach differs from the Stevens "Rocket." Besides, these companies, after the war, will get most of the first-class mail and much express business.

Another Reason Why I Like the Commercial Air Transportation Companies

Another reason why I like the commercial air transportation companies is because the smallest investor can buy a stake in the entire industry. Although you must invest in over 500 railroads to get a proper share in 95% of the railroad business, you need invest in only six air transportation companies—properly diversified—to have an ownership in 95% of the air transport industry. Idea of 'Voluntary' Restraints on Labor Gives Those in Washington Something to Smile About

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, Sept. 26—There is very little to smile about in these days of hectic living in the national capital but if there could be an award for the "smile-of-the-week" it would be credited to whoever is the author of the idea of "voluntary" regulation of wages.

To say that prices of everything else should be fixed by law but that the price of labor can be held down by the "voluntary" restraints imposed upon itself by labor is to attribute to labor leaders a willingness to abolish one of the principal reasons for their office-holding in trade unions—to get wage increases whenever possible.

If the sponsors of the "voluntary" idea mean that government officials will be able to freeze wages and prevent increases through the government's unofficial powers of persuasion, then the plan becomes even less plausible. For the government itself—meaning thereby the President and his New Deal advisers—are responsible for the wage spiral which has given momentum to the inflationary price levels we have been experiencing in the last few months.

It will be recalled that last spring there was a wage conference between the Auto Workers Union and General Motors. A strike was threatened. Fearful of displeasing the union, the administration passed the word to the National Defense Mediation Board that it was all right to increase wages by ten per cent. No thought was given to the fact that the auto industry was a key business and that accessory manufacturers and employers in the entire middle west would be compelled to give a ten per cent increase too. Indeed, the union leaders went around the middle west quoting the National Defense Mediation Board members as favoring the reopening of contracts that had not expired in order to provide for wage increases. The whole record of what the administration has done on wage increases in the year 1941 will not stand up to impartial examination. For it reveals the national government as having blundered so badly that it is doubtful whether anything now can be done to stop the wage spiral and the price inflation that has begun.

It was known then that the administration was planning to collect by excess profits rates more taxes than ever before. It was known also that the cost to the taxpayers of the financial burden on defense contracts would be increased by high labor costs. But the administration sailed along so carelessly into the sea of inflation. And now, as the storm threatens, the administration presents the feeble argument that everything else in the way of prices can be regulated by law but wages. These costs, it is insisted, can be handled by the "voluntary" plan.

The present administration has been criticized many times for its lack of planning and inability to enterprise or the profit and loss mechanism by which our industrial strength has been built up. But this fundamental defect in reasoning has not been as serious as it is today. For the government is leaning on our industrial system to beat Hitler. It can hardly do that if it undertakes to wreck the system it is exhorting so constantly to increase the output of planes, tanks, munitions and war supplies. The recent attacks on industry simply do not make sense and some day the workers when out of jobs will discover this sad truth and join in repudiating the leaders who led them astray.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Sam M. Watts, who was active for years in the civic, fraternal and political life of the city, was elected president of the Kingston Rotary Club at the annual meeting held in 1921. Mr. Watts served as alderman-at-large during part of the long administration of Palmer Canfield as mayor of the city.

The other Rotary officers elected that year were A. W. Hoffman as vice president; Dr. Charles D. Carter as treasurer, and Harry P. Dodge as secretary. All of the officers were prominently identified with business and fraternal life of the city.

I also recall that the play, "The Bashful Bobbs," was presented in May of 1921 by the young folks of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Dutch Church. Among those in the cast were Gladys Castor, Raymond Sanderson, Maude Edwards, Thomas Clearwater, Ila Haulenbeck, Lida Hinkley, Ellery Morris, Ruth Burns, Benson Miller and Helen Haulenbeck.

Miss Jacquelin Monroe was crowned Queen of May at the annual May Day exercises at the Kingston High School in 1921. The prime minister was Joseph Purcell, and the chamberlain, the court of the queen were Mary Faly, Ruth Dana, Isabelle Mulhern, Olive Marsh, Dorothy Beeres, Marjorie Richards, Rose Kiefer, Frances Geroldsek, Eleanor Mahar and Mildred Whittaker.

The flower girls were Betty Murphy and Betty Flemming while the train bearers were Virginia Brown, Jean Molyneux, Isabelle Malone, and Sally O'Leary. The scepter bearer was Ralph Brooks.

The year 1921 was also a marked one in political affairs in Kingston for the year rejected Mayor Palmer Canfield as a candidate to succeed himself, and named former Mayor Walter P. Crane.

Mayor Canfield's friends took the fight to the primaries but again the mayor was defeated and Mr. Crane received the Republican nomination and in November of that year was elected mayor of the city.

Mayor Canfield up to that time had served the city as mayor for a longer period than any other man in the city's history.

It was during the Canfield administration that supervised play came into existence in the city, and also that the city began acquiring its present park system.

The only real objection made to the Canfield administration was I recall, and that a weak one, was that "he was ahead of his times."

ous tale which comes out of Berlin today that the reason German Jews are being compelled to wear a yellow star of David on their left breasts is because all German nationals in the United States are forced to wear the swastika. Nazi officials say the government knows nothing about the report.

Stories like that frequently crop up in war. Sometimes they are deliberately manufactured for purposes of propaganda, and then again they are just the result of a mysterious spontaneous combustion. Be it said, too, that this type of fiction isn't copyrighted by any one nation.

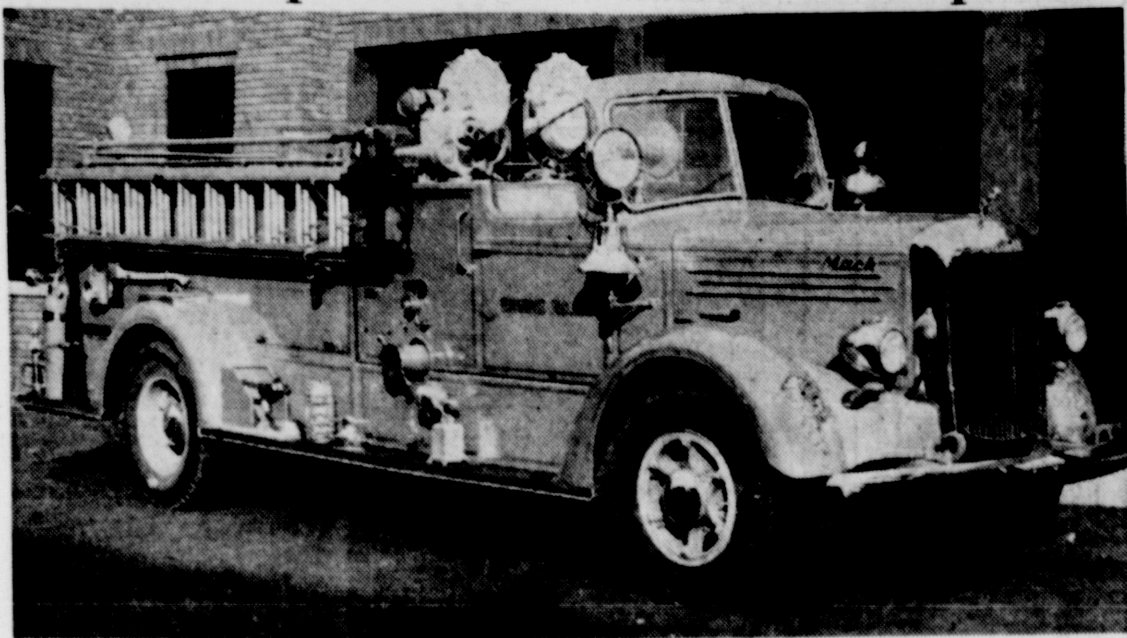

One of the most notorious of all war-fakes was the story of the alleged German kadaver factory in the world conflict. This horrible concoction was to the effect that the Germans, being hard pressed for fats, had built plants where they were making soap and so on from the bodies of their dead soldiers.

The story originated on the British front in France, and was given out officially, with "evidence" to support it. I was one of the war correspondents at British G. H. Q. at that time, and while the press fell for the yarn at first, because of ostensible proof of its truth, we soon became suspicious and refused to have more to say about it. After the war was over, a high British officer coolly admitted that he had faked the thing out of whole cloth. There wasn't a word of truth in it.

Fire Department Gets New Pumper

Freeman Photo

The new Mack pumper, ordered by the Kingston Fire Department and to be stationed at the Cornell House on Abel street, arrived yesterday afternoon. This is the only truck in service with the department that is equipped with its own floodlights directly in back of the front seat. It has a 185 h. p., 6 cylinder motor. The truck has three discharge valves capable of pumping 750 gallons of water a minute through the nine lines. It was said tests probably would be made early next week.

Program of Week At Local Y.M.C.A.

Monday has been the date fixed for the opening of the fall and winter program at the local Y. M. C. A., and the first few weeks will be dedicated to informal activities and to the enrollment of the various classes. The scope of the program will include work with boys, girls, women and men; formal class work, and special clubs.

The official program for the opening of activities at the "Y" follows:

Boys' classes will meet as follows: Preps: Swim Tuesdays at 4 p. m.; gymnasium and swimming on Saturdays at 9 a. m. Juniors: Gymnasium and swimming on Tuesdays at 4 p. m. and Saturdays at 10 a. m. and swimming on Thursdays at 4 p. m. Senior high school boys: Gymnasium and swimming on Mondays and Thursdays at 4 p. m. (Extra privileges to be arranged at a later date). Leaders' Club: Gymnasium and swimming on Wednesdays at 4 p. m. Rotary Boys' Club: Gymnasium and swimming on Tuesdays at 7 p. m. for class "A" and on Thursdays at 7 p. m. for class "B."

Men's classes will meet as follows: Business Men's health drills on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays at 5:30 p. m. Business Men's Club on Mondays and Thursdays at 8:30 p. m. Senior Men on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8:30 o'clock. Basketball leagues on Tuesdays at 8:30 p. m. Varsity basketball on Wednesdays at 9 p. m.

Women, girls, and co-ed: Kingston Hospital Student Nurses: Gymnasium and swimming on Tuesdays at 10 a. m. Junior Girls' swimming: On Fridays at 3:30 p. m. Business and Professional Girls' Club: Swimming on Wednesdays at 7:30 p. m. Polar Bears Women's Club: Swimming on Wednesdays at 9:30 o'clock. Badminton Club (Co-ed): Senior and junior hours to be arranged.

Handball and paddle ball hours are available daily at times when regularly scheduled classes are not in session. Such activities as informal basketball, boxing, gymnastics, swimming instruction and competitive swimming will develop according to plan.

Car Hits Pole

Richard Whalen, Jr., of 26 Boulevard, reported to police headquarters shortly after 2 o'clock this morning that while operating an automobile owned by Mortimer A. Feistel of 370 South Wall street, on Broadway he had lost control of the car and it swerved and struck one of the ornamental light poles in front of No. 210 Broadway. Both car and pole were damaged and Mr. Feistel, who was riding in the automobile, suffered two cuts on the head.

Townsend Warns Of Drastic Cuts In Civilian Items

Cutting Down Process Is to Be Speeded Fast, Priorities Official Says in South

Jackson's Mill, W. Va., Sept. 26 (AP)—Warning of drastic curtailment in supplies of many ordinary civilian goods—such as refrigerators, washing machines and radios—was given here today by M. Clifford Townsend, agricultural representative on defense priorities.

He said that defense officials had been "a little slow in the cutting down process, but from here on out it is going to be speeded up—and speeded up fast." Noting that automobile production for December had been slashed in two because of defense demands, Townsend said in a prepared address that this was "just a sample" of what must happen in many other lines of civilian supplies.

"So far, the general public hasn't felt this cutting down process on a very large scale because of the supplies already on store shelves and in warehouses," he said. "When the goods already manufactured are exhausted then the public will realize what has happened. The manufacturers, who turn out their products several months in advance of actual retail sales, already know what has happened."

Townsend, former governor of Indiana, who has been serving as liaison man for the agriculture department at defense planning sessions, prepared his address for delivery to a training school for farm leaders here under auspices of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Vitamin K Might Answer Cancer Cure, Says Doctor

No one knows the cause of cancer or how to prevent it. But cancer's thousands of hard-working researchers are making progress. In Philadelphia doctors and biochemists were much impressed by a chain of astute guesses put together by Harvard's Louis Frederick Fieser, one of the men who last year synthesized the blood-clotting, hemorrhage-stopping vitamin K.

It is known that certain hydrocarbon compounds from coal tar, notably the cholanthenes, cause cancers to grow in animals. These hydrocarbons are called "carcinogens" ("cancer-makers"). Methylcholanthrene is the most potent carcinogen known. Six years ago two British chemists found that methylcholanthrene could be made by chemically breaking down bile acid. Could it be possible, asked Dr. Fieser, that human cancer could be caused by hydrocarbon carcinogens produced by the body itself? Hydrocarbons, which contain only carbon and hydrogen, are not normal body chemicals. But they might be produced by abnormal metabolism of body secretions, such as acids and hormones.

At Harvard, Dr. Fieser and his co-workers fed harmful carcinogens to rabbits. Some rabbits nevertheless failed to develop cancers. Examining the urine of these lucky beasts, the researchers found that the carcinogens had been "detoxified." The chemical mechanism of detoxification was similar in some ways to the action of prothrombin, the blood's clotting agent, by vitamin K. In fact, the evidence suggested that, when prothrombin activity was high, resistance to carcinogens and therefore to cancer might—just possibly—be high too. Therefore vitamin K, the prothrombin stimulator, might—just possibly—keep animals from getting hydrocarbon cancers. Experiments to test this theory, said Dr. Fieser modestly, are getting under way at Harvard.

Chimney Swift Fastest

The chimney swift has been clocked at more than a hundred miles an hour. Exceeding the duck hawk, he is the swiftest bird that flies. And the unique thing about this speedster is that his wings beat alternately rather than in unison.

He catches his food, bathes and drinks while on the wing. From the time he leaves his chimney until he returns to it, he is never known to light. It has been estimated that individuals may cover a thousand miles in a single day in search of of the romance by Beaudette premature. The wedding, Mrs. Wright said, will take place here or in New York. Beaudette, son of Mr.

and Mrs. Leo Beaudette of Pontiac, Mich., and grandson of O. J. Beaudette, millionaire designer of automobile bodies, has been detailed to attend a three months officers' training course in Georgia. The ceremony will await his graduation.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIAN GREY

Chapter 17
Unexpected Guest

"PAM! Ten years have been frightened off the far end of my life!" Jerry's arms closed around her and drew her tight, the water from their dripping garments making a little circle around them.

"Silly!" Pam exclaimed. "Have you forgotten that I was born in Key West?"

"And consequently swim like a fish. Yes, I had forgotten. I'd forgotten everything in the world, Pam, except that if you went out of my life all of its reason for being would be gone. That if I lost you I'd have lost everything."

Pam clung to Jerry in momentary panic. His words had brought home to her doubly what it would mean to her to lose him. She paused on the thought of what she would have done if he had not plunged after her.

It would, she knew, have built a barrier that they could never have surmounted. It would have separated them forever, because it would in a sense have been making a choice between his own crowd and her. If he had chosen the others in that crisis, she could never have forgiven him.

"Oh, Jerry!" Her emotion finally found words. "I feel that way, too. If I lost you, I'd lose everything. Everything!"

"I know, darling. I know." He kissed her damp face. "Pam, you're the dearest, sweetest girl in the world!"

"If I only could be, for you I want to be everything in the world that you want."

It was Jerry who was first concerned about their wet clothes. "You'll take cold," he said. "These wet things. Come, I must get you home where you can get dry ones."

"You keep forgetting that we Conch aren't afraid of salt water," Pam laughed. "Salt water never gives you a cold. It's being out in the rain that does that."

"Says you! Come, I'm taking no chances with you, sweet." "But really I mean it, Jerry. We're never afraid of being wet with salt water. It never gives you a cold. That's a belief handed down through generations of sea-faring men and their women. But we don't want it on our shells in our houses. We feel they're bad luck when you bring them under a roof."

"Nevertheless I'm taking no chances with you," he lifted her in his arms and carried her to his car. "You can change, darling, and then we'll go to the hotel and I'll change. We'll go back to the party and laugh at them for having given us the sweetest hour of my life."

"No, Jerry. I can't go back. Don't ask me to do that. I couldn't." "But you don't expect me to take you home and then go back to the party alone, Pam? I couldn't do that, either. Not now, darling. I've got to have you a little while longer. The night's too young and beautiful to give you up, even for a few hours, just yet."

"I'll tell you what—Pam's voice was as eager as his own—"let's change and then drive to South Beach and let me show you the Southern Cross. They say this is the only place in the States where you can see it."

"In the mood I'm in, sweetheart, an ordinary garden-variety star would be a seven-days' wonder."

It was then that they were aware of Blaze standing beside the car, patiently awaiting her turn at attention. Jerry turned to her.

"You four-legged idiot," he said tenderly. "But you deserve a jeweled collar for your loyalty tonight. Come on, he invited and, with her dripping coat, she got into the car and rode alone."

"A Heroine Now
MELITA met them at the door and hurried to get a towel with which Jerry could dry Blaze. She hovered over Pam and clucked in anxiety like an old mother-hen over her chicks."

And Jerry, sitting on the bottom step briskly rubbing Blaze, who was thoroughly enjoying the attention, called up to Pam.

"Make yourself beautiful, darling," he said. "On second thought, this skipping the rest of the party is no good. We've got to go back. There is a lot of fun still to be had; the night's young. Besides, Pam, you're a heroine now, and won't that bite into Lenore's pride and vanity! That's going to be a wallop right where it will hurt her most, Pam—in her pride."

Pam didn't reply immediately. "We can't let that girl annihilate us," Jerry went on. "Besides, Mother and Dad would worry. They'd think we'd developed quick pneumonia, or something. So the Southern Cross can wait."

"All right," Pam's reply came thoughtfully, "anything you say." Pam was thinking. Their mutual danger had tricked her into a revelation she had not wanted to make. A sudden upthrust of emotion had led her to say things she would probably regret, things she was not even sure she meant.

There was Leo. Steady, dependable, worthwhile Leo. And the memory of Jerry's bet about her

Registration Is Vital
Kingston sector and post warden are passing out questionnaire cards to householders in this city, so that all may register for defense of their homes and be prepared if war comes to the U. S. A. This is vital to all. Registration ends October 1.

Whitfield, Sept. 26—Miss Marjorie Davis, who has been employed at the Cragmoor post-office during the summer has returned home and has accepted a position at Valley Gardens at Accord, as bookkeeper.

Miss Beverly Hornbeck entertained a friend from Schenectady Sunday.

Leslie Anderson and mother have returned from New York. Miss Melvina Barley and Miss Marjorie Davis attended a bridal shower in Kingston Saturday evening for Miss Mildred Palen which was given by Mr. and Mrs. John Sleight at their home.

Mrs. Edith Whitman and children are expected home October 1 after spending the summer with her sister in Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver VanSteenburg of Kingston spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis.

with his friends still lay between them, an invisible barrier. That had not been explained away. Perhaps never could be.

She would go back to the yacht with him. That was all right. That would tantalize Lenore still further, and she had asked for all that could be given her. Pam was selecting another dress to put on.

"Since we're going to go back, Jerry," she said to him, "run along and get yourself into other things while I'm dressing, then come back for me."

She selected a dress of deep cream, a heavy rich silk that a sailor had brought to her father in return for some favor. Queller had done for him. The marigolds, none the worse for their impromptu bath, were the single touch of ornamentation it needed.

"The encore, darling," Jerry said as he saw her again, "is better than the original number. If the girls were jealous of you before, they'll turn handsprings now. I'm glad to be going back to the party. But, with elaborate emphasis, "that doesn't mean I don't want to see the Southern Cross with you later, darling."

New Guest
AS JERRY and Pam walked from their car to the boat, they noticed the solitary figure of a man standing staring at the boat with its blaze of light and sounds of gaiety. They were passing quite near to him when something about the figure caught Pam's attention. She looked a trace more closely and then spoke.

"Hello, Vin," she said. "Oh! Hello, Pam." The young man seemed to start as he spoke. Jerry peered through the shadows and recognized the youth as the one who had seemed to be trailing Freda.

"Do you know him?" Jerry asked in a low voice. "I've known Vin all my life." Jerry turned to the young man then.

"Come along in and join the party," he said. "My dad owns the scow, so it's all right!" Vin hesitated only a moment. "I'm not dressed—" he started to say, and Pam smiled gently, for she knew the fresh white suit Vin wore was probably his best.

"Oh, you're all right," Jerry cut in. "No rules and regulations here. Or if there are, I'm the bird who makes them. So come in and grab yourself an evening."

"I'd like to!" Vin was beside them, walking in with them.

"Go pick yourself a partner, and have yourself a time," Jerry advised him with a friendly warmth. "No introductions here, the ship's flag does for that!"

So Vin slipped away to find himself a girl and Jerry and Pam were the bright stars of the moment.

Everyone had their congratulations to offer. As soon as he could, Jerry took Pam away to a little spot atop the cabin, from which he wanted to show her the stars.

Up there he said: "It wasn't stars I wanted to show you, Pam. Look! And he held in his hand the sea bean and the violet she had given him. "I've kept them with me continually."

"Jerry!" That swift uplift of her heart again. "But how foolish of you!"

"Foolish? Not at all, darling. These represent one of the smartest things I've ever done. And, you know—" he was grinning whimsically—"I seem to remember your saying you'd never ask me into your house again and my saying you couldn't keep that threat. Well, tonight you asked me in. I seem to be getting somewhere. Progressing, as it were."

"Foolish! Could I be disconcerted to a man who had risked his life for me when he thought I needed saving?"

"Foolish? Well, as I seem to remember saying before, darling, it's nice foolishness."

It was then that Blaze, who had been crowded away from them in their triumphant return to the yacht, sniffed inquisitively from the stairs. Her nose was quickly followed by her whole eager body, her tail wagging madly at discovery of her loved ones.

"You old snooper!" Jerry scratched her ear fondly. "Shall we go down and dance now?" Antoine was idling near the rail as Jerry and Pam passed. "Come on, Antoine," Jerry said. "We could do with a brace of cadenzas!"

Antoine grinned. "The stars of the evening have but to command," was his easy reply as he moved toward his piano. A crowd brought all the boys to attention, when the old man's opening notes brought dancers to the floor.

Pam, looking over Jerry's shoulder, saw Vin trying to engage Lenore in conversation while de Belleford stood close. Lenore seemed to writhe with embarrassment. Pam signaled to Vin. He cut in. As Antoine finished, he caught Vin's eyes in friendly greeting and held out his baton. Vin moved swiftly toward him, urged on by a friendly pat from Pam.

"Show them how it's done, Vin," she said.

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Selective Service registrants who are rejected at Army induction centers because they do not meet Army physical standards should be reinstated in their former jobs, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, declared today, instructing all local boards to utilize every facility at their disposal to aid these men.

The Selective Training and Service Act requires former employers to reinstate men inducted into the armed forces who satisfactorily complete their military training and there is likewise a moral obligation to reinstate former employees who are not inducted but have patriotically answered a call for service.

A considerable part of this problem will be removed after the new Pre-Induction physical examination plan goes into effect but until that time there will be need for employers to reinstate registrants not inducted and there may be an occasional necessity even after the plan is in operation.

General Brown said: "A man who responds to the call for military training is fulfilling his obligation to his country. When, for some reason beyond his control, he is not inducted he must be considered as having discharged his responsibility under the law and should be protected in his occupation. Every effort must be made to prevent hardship in such cases."

"Because a man has been rejected by the Army it does not necessarily follow he is physically unfitted for civilian occupation. Army standards are very exacting due to requirements of the training program and the possible hospitalization or pensions for those who 'reak down.'"

While State Selective Service Headquarters has been informed that most New York employers are reinstating rejected registrants in their former jobs, there is the wish to make certain that none are treated unjustly. Registrants' Advisory Boards, which have charge of re-employment of discharged trainees, will aid rejected registrants as assiduously as they are assisting returning soldiers to obtain employment.

New Style in Caddies

Hartford, Conn.—Just as the Hartford Golf Club was beginning to become alarmed because defense jobs had created a caddy shortage, a pair of young women showed up and announced they were available as bag-toters.

Florence D. Abbott and Mary A. Hallihan, waitresses with plenty of spare time during the day, were hired on the spot and proved satisfactory. Now the club is looking for more like them.

Super-Salesmanship

Tampa, Fla.—A kind but practical Tampa woman took three motherless kittens to the humane society, planning to give them away.

But society officials performed a job of super-salesmanship and when the woman returned home she had:

The three kittens she started out with, plus a mother cat that had lost her kittens, plus two other orphan kittens.

Hitch

Eureka, Mont.—The siren was going full blast but not a peep came from the motor when the fire engine finally reached Mrs. William Porter's blazing home.

En route, the engine stalled. A passing truckman towed it to the fire in time to save the family wash, dripping on a backyard line.

Traffic Bouncer

Los Angeles—Ed Townsend has a system all his own of dealing with speeders.

There is no traffic signal at a busy intersection near Townsend's service station. To protect his own two youngsters and those of his neighbors, he appointed himself crossing watchman for two hours each day.

He rules with a rubber mallet—with which he whams the fenders of drivers who refuse right of way for the children.

Walter Ostrander Wins Seven Dahlia Awards

Walter Ostrander, uptown clothing merchant who is also known locally for his hobby of dahlia growing, captured seven awards at the American Dahlia Society Exhibition held September 24 and 25 at the Museum of Natural History, New York city.

Mr. Ostrander's awards came through his ability in arranging his displays and also for his miniatures and medium size varieties.

Fringe Adds to Chair's Appeal

Fringe, a popular decorative note these days, is the passport that gives this lounge chair permission to enter the bedroom, living room or any other room where this type would be needed. A selection of tapestry or velvet coverings is offered, and the chair also may be obtained in imitation leather. The nearby end table has more than the usual shelf space found in such pieces.

PORT EWEN

Group to Sew

Port Ewen, Sept. 26—There will be another all-day sewing meeting at the Reformed Church house on Wednesday, October 1. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon. All ladies of the community are invited to attend and help in this work. It is hoped to have enough interested in quilting present to work on a quilt which has been donated. The sewing of the day will be on wool dresses sent from the local Red Cross chapter. Workers are needed for sewing on dresses, tacking quilts, to work in the kitchen and do hand sewing.

Village Notes

The Senior C. E. Society of the Reformed Church will sponsor a special evening service Sunday evening in the church in observance of Rally Day. The Rev. D. Linton Dougherty, pastor of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, will be the speaker of the evening. There will also be special music. The public is invited.

The officers of the Women's Bowling League met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herbert Christian to discuss plans for the coming season. It was decided that all those who bowled last season and wish to do so this year must notify either Mrs. Herbert Christian, Kingston 1809-J, or Mrs. Vincent Meleski, Kingston 4355-W, by Wednesday, October 1. If such intention is not filed, it will be assumed that the person does not wish to bowl this season and she will be replaced from the waiting list.

William Goodrich is enjoying a vacation in Albany.

Rally Day will be observed Sunday at the 11 o'clock service at the Methodist Church.

The Methodist Church junior choir will meet this evening at 7 o'clock.

The Methodist Church Ladies' Aid Society will meet Thursday afternoon, October 2, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Vinal LeFevre on Broadway.

The Epworth League will meet at the home of Theresa Clark Thursday evening, October 2, at 7:30 o'clock.

Carpenters will be needed Monday evening to assist with the work on the bowling alleys in the Reformed Church basement.

Rally Day will be observed Sunday at the Reformed Church. The final offering will be collected at the morning service.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will hold a social evening in the church house this evening. Members of the congregation and their families are invited. Games will be played and refreshments served.

New York Briefs

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bruno Landi, Metropolitan Opera tenor, was at Ellis Island today, reportedly excluded from the United States since his arrival from South America last Monday. It was explained at the immigration office that Landi, an Italian, was not a bona fide visitor since he intended to remain in the United States, but had only a visitor's visa.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Remember reading a week ago there weren't any jurors in the Lepke Buchalter murder trial as yet?

Well, here's the weekly report. There is now one juror, Charles E. Stevens, who's been sitting alone in the box since Wednesday. Buchalter, with Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone, is accused of the murder of Joseph Rosen September 12, 1936. The trial began a week and a half ago and court officials attributed to the prospect of a long trial the reluctance of takersmen to serve.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Higher milk prices are in prospect for the New York area, says N. J. Cladakis, milk marketing administrator, and the price of cream is going up October 1. On that date, he said, farmers will receive 15 cents more per cwt for class 2-A milk used for cream, with two-cents-a-pint rise to the consumer.

Konrad Cramer Teaches Photography at Bard

Anandale-on-Hudson, Sept. 25, (Special)—Konrad Cramer, professional photographer and artist of Woodstock is now in charge of a large photography class at Bard college. Mr. Cramer comes to Bard every Thursday to teach his course.

"What we are now," Mr. Cramer said, speaking of his class, "and what we hope to be are entirely different things." Aside from actual teaching, he pointed out, it is his aim to correlate his class with all the other divisions of the college.

Mr. Cramer pointed out that the dark room equipment at Bard is constantly being added to, and he praised the great cooperation of the students when it came to working in such limited space. Mr. Cramer is a teacher of photography, mainly at his studio in Woodstock during the summer.

Rent Groups to Fight Gouging

Henderson Reports Committees Established in 21 Defense Centers.

WASHINGTON.—In an effort to prevent profiteering in rents in national defense areas, the office of price administration and civilian supply reports that fair rent committees have been organized in 21 cities, and urged the creation of others where abuses appeared.

Publicity for offending landlords was suggested by OPACS, which also said that the division of defense housing co-ordination would refuse to register any dwelling unit or room, the rent for which had been declared unfair by a fair rent committee.

Quick Action Needed.

"Surveys now being conducted by federal research agencies at the request of the OPACS rent section and thousands of letters of complaint show that rapid rises in rents are under way in more than 100 defense areas," it was stated. "Quick action to head off this trend is urged by the OPACS rent section. Designation of fair rent committees, ably led, guided by OPACS and backed by the full force of public opinion and the local press is one method by which local authorities can curb rent profiteering."

Leadership in the rent campaign has been taken, said the agency, by citizens in Wilmington, N. C.; South Bend, Ind.; San Diego, Calif.; Newport News, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Hampton and Virginia Beach, Va.; Ravenna and Warren, Ohio; Pontiac, Mich.; Alexandria, La.; Columbus, Ga.; Mobile, Sylvauga and Talladega, Ala.; and Hartford, New London, Groton, Waterbury and Bristol, Conn.

Serious Offense.

Under the OPACS plan, the fair rent committee would be appointed by mayors or other responsible authorities. When organized, a committee would determine a "fair rent date," that is, a day on which local rents had not yet been affected seriously by defense activities. Tenants, roomers and lodgers would then be invited to file complaints against increases. On evidence of profiteering the landlord and complainant would be asked to appear. If the landlord complied with the committee decision, that would end the matter, but if he stood fast, "full publicity" might be given "to all the facts in the case."

Leon Henderson, the OPACS head, said that profiteering in rents during the emergency was "a serious offense against the nation's welfare."

Traveler Wasn't Praying,

Mattress Needed Inflation

VISALIA, CALIF.—Dr. I. H. Betts returned to his home here after participating in a 100-mile horseback trek with a reputation among his fellow travelers for being a devout, pious man, for he had noticed that he knelt at his bedside each evening. One complimented H. A. Orrison, the fact that the physician prayed so regularly.

Orrison investigated the next evening. Sure enough, Dr. Betts was on his knees at the side of the bed, but instead of praying he was blowing away on a rubber sleeping mattress.

"No," said Dr. Betts, "I'm not praying now, but the next time I come on a trek like this I won't forget the pump that goes with this mattress."

As Bride and Pals Cheer

SAN DIEGO.—Cat calls and heckling from a long line of impatient soldiers, waiting to use a Camp Calan pay telephone, turned into cheers for Private Robert P. Kronewitter.

He set a new high for army pay-as-you-go phone calls at the San Diego camp by talking for 21 minutes to South Bend, Ind.

Kronewitter, a bridegroom of less than three months, was celebrating his wife's birthday by talking to her. Before he finished, he put 69 quarters and three nickels in the slot.

Said Kronewitter, emerging from the booth with a sweaty brow and a sublime expression: "It sure was worth it!"

In a tag-day collection in Santiago recently funds were raised for the original inhabitants of Chile, the Araucanian Indians.

RUSS WANT MUCH MEAT

Reports of impending Russian orders for millions of cans of beef absorbing between 20,000 and 300,000 tons of meat gave a big thrill to meat authorities of Brisbane, Australia. Plans were started to step up production when it was learned that Russia would send more ships to Australia for the food.

★AMERICANA★ Apple Butter

By RAY PEACOCK

AP Feature Service Writer

TOO many cooks may spoil the broth, but too many cooks can't spoil the apple butter. Because every one is liable to add a pinch of cinnamon just for luck, and you can't be stingy with the cinnamon and have good apple butter.

Ever taste apple butter made out of doors, in a big iron kettle of the Mayflower era? Life has cheated you out of one of its good things if you haven't, for that kind of apple butter has a flavor and tang all its own.

If there's a little wood ash in it, so much the better. Good oak and apple ashes never hurt any food, and you have to eat your peck of dirt some way, don't you?

You have to have a big veal roast or it just isn't any good. Apple butter is the same way.

It should be made by the gallon and not by the pint. For one thing, the menfolks are liable to stop by for a sample when it's in the making, and you need something left to put up for the winter.

And the cooking of it ought to be a family ceremony, with Ma bossing her grown up daughters and a daughter-in-law or two. Best spot for the job is right out in the apple orchard, especially if it's next to the wood lot.

Not all of us, of course, have got an apple orchard or a wood lot or even a Mayflower kettle. And some of us have to get our apple butter over the counter, in tin cans or glass jars. Maybe they still put it up in crocks, but I haven't seen any for a long time.

Even then, it tastes pretty good. If it doesn't—well, you always can add cinnamon!

Students Are Thrifty

Students in the Kingston school system evidently are of a thrifty nature. Superintendent of Schools Laidlaw reports that on September 16, the first deposit day of the School Thrift Banking system after the re-opening of schools this fall, there was a total of $7,031.32 deposited. Evidently this was the accumulation of the summer season savings of many students. There were 365 new accounts opened and the total now on deposit by school children of Kingston is $109,686.97.

Decree Granted

Justice Harry E. Schirick on September 24 granted an interlocutory decree of annulment of marriage in the action brought by Vera I. Burrows of Kingston against Hubert J. Burrows of Washington, D. C. Decree was granted on the ground that defendant had previously been married to one Nellie May Jennings, from whom at the time of his second marriage he had not been legally divorced. The couple was married at Matamoras, Pa., February 8, 1938. N. LeVan Haver appeared for the plaintiff in the proceedings before Justice Schirick.

Out in Oklahoma All You Do Is Dig Hole for Gasoline

When You Run Out, There
Are 2,000,000 Gallons
More; It's Special,
Extra Fine, Too

Enid, Okla., Sept. 26 (AP)—The motorists' dream has come true! Just dig a hole and it fills up with high grade gasoline as fast as you can use it. And there's 2,000,000 gallons more where that comes from.

The thing started when a water well filled up with gasoline. Excited neighbors dug holes, which also filled up with gasoline. They tried the fuel in automobile tanks. It worked fine and sales fell off sharply. The State Tax Commission, noting the decline, sent an inspector to investigate.

Inquiry disclosed the gasoline probably had been leaking from big storage tanks of the Champlin Refining Company.

Company officials said the fuel had seeped into sands 25 or 30 feet under the surface of the ground and in running through the sands had been refined further. They offered to buy the fuel for four cents a gallon.

Mississippi City Gets Fees

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 26 (AP)—State Oil and Gas Supervisor H. M. Morse said gasoline which has mysteriously flowed from a water well at Taylor, Miss., since last April contains tetraethyl lead and is highly valuable as a motor fuel. Morse, after an analysis of a sample from the well, said the gasoline "is bound to be seeping from a leaking storage tank." Proprietors of filling stations near the well have insisted that surveys show their underground tanks are free from leakage.

The well, in the heart of the small community's business district, had furnished the residents with drinking water for years until the gasoline content appeared. Since then profits from sale of the gasoline, drawn from the water by a cream separator, have gone into the community treasury.

newsmen that he thought it was too late for adoption of the "universal price ceiling" proposed by Bernard M. Baruch, World War head of the war industries board. "If we could have put such a plan into operation say about March 1, before the sharp increase started, I would have been in favor of it," Nelson said. "But I don't think the public would have stood for it then, and you have to be guided by what is practically possible."

In response to questions, Nelson said he was opposed to controlling wages by legislation because "you can't have concentration camps in this country for violators."

He said he was opposed to Secretary Morgenthau's proposal for 100 per cent taxation of corporations profits in excess of 6 per cent, explaining he thought that the profit system had to have an incentive to make it work.

As to farm prices, Nelson said he thought there should be a ceiling over them, but added he did not know just where it should be.

Councilmen to Be Named In Eleven Towns This Year

Eleven towns in Ulster county this year will take advantage of the new town law, which permits election of town councilmen and instead of electing two justices of the peace will elect a councilman and a justice.

In towns operating under this section of the law town justices eventually will have two justices of the peace and two councilmen, instead of four justices as has been the rule for many years.

Towns which up to date have adopted the new system are Esopus, Gardiner, Hurley, Lloyd, New Paltz, Plattekill, Rosendale, Saugerties, Shawangunk, Ulster and Wawarsing.

Superintendent Laidlaw reported there were 550 individual boys taking the vocational courses with a total of 641 registered in all classes in the boy's division of vocational training, an increase from 300 a year ago to 550 boys now. There are over 300 girls taking the special courses, making total number of students taking vocational courses about 900. In the elementary schools are 2,443 registered. In the M.J.M., 790, and in the high school, 1,778, for a total of 5,011 in the public schools. In the private and parochial school there are 1,173 enrolled, making a total of 6,184 students enrolled in the city.

Local Police Notified Of Gloversville Arrest

Kingston's police department received word Thursday afternoon that Eugene J. Rooney had been arrested in Gloversville on a warrant sworn out in November, 1938, by Harris Brown of this city, charging Rooney with petit larceny. Rooney furnished bail for his appearance in police court here October 2. The arrest grew out of a bad check charge.

Mrs. Ina J. Craver and Mrs. Edith Smith, both of Green street, were arrested Thursday on charges of parking in a restricted area. They furnished bail for their appearance later. Mrs. Craver said that when arrested her car was parked in front of her home.

John Kiernan of Abel street, was arrested Thursday charged with failing to observe a full stop sign and also with not having an operator's license. He furnished bail for his appearance later. Carl Krempel of Route 3, Kingston, charged with double-parking and having no operator's license, gave bail for appearance later. Charles J. Drury of Worcester, Mass., charged with vagrancy, and Ethan Decker of Sleightsburgh, charged with public intoxication, were held for hearings later.

Red Mines Kill German Battalions

city of Velizh, 70 miles northwest of Smolensk.

Nazi military dispatches said great masses of Russian troops were storming German trenches on the east bank of the Dvina river but had been unable to break through.

In the same area, Soviet reports said the Germans had been routed with more than 2,500 Nazis killed.

On the bloody Leningrad front, German dispatches pictured the old-time capital of imperial Russia as being slowly reduced to ruins as house-to-house fighting raged without halt in suburban streets.

Moscow had an air-raid alarm for the third successive night. The Moscow radio said the planes were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

In the Far East, Japan began a subdued observance of tomorrow's first anniversary of her entry into the Rome-Berlin alliance by stressing asserted world peace aims of the Axis.

Celebrations were restricted; in some instances, pro-Axis leaders were silenced by government order.

Not Like Other Pacts

Nobunbun Ito, Japanese cabinet spokesman, declared that the totalitarian pact was "not like military alliances of the past"—made for advantages in the prosecution of war—but that its primary objective was peace and that Japan would retain her ties to this end.

He quoted Emperor Hirohito's dictum that "we fervently hope cessation of disturbances and restoration of peace will be realized as swiftly as possible."

During her year in the Axis bloc, Japan has gone through another exhausting 12 months of war with China and seen her world trade virtually disappear through the freezing of credits and the spread of war.

On the Chinese-Japanese battlefield, Japanese dispatches reported that four of seven Chinese armies had been smashed in the Japanese drive on Changsha, Hunan province capital, and that another Chinese army of 100,000 men was encircled 25 miles northwest of the city.

Only two Chinese armies remained to defend Changsha, a Japanese military spokesman said.

Japanese troops were reported to have advanced within 18 miles of the city of 600,000 population, and 300,000 Chinese soldiers were said to be retreating along a 180-mile front.

Americans stranded in Japan by a lack of shipping for the United States saw a glimmer of hope in a disclosure by the official Japanese spokesman, Koh Ishii, that the Tokyo government was considering dispatching a Japanese vessel to take Americans home from Japan and to take Japanese nations home from the United States.

If finally arranged, the ship also would carry piles of mail, now held up by the suspension of service.

Interest in civil aviation is steadily increasing in Uruguay, the Department of Commerce reports.

Paper-Like Material

'Alsisfilm' Is Ageless

Newsprint made from Southern pine, now in production, may have far-reaching results for the South. Lower costs are possible; the wood which is used costs less, and power costs are lower because of the availability of natural gas and petroleum; the biggest savings are expected to come from reduction in freight charges, particularly in shipping newspaper print from Canada to New England. But the operation is too new yet for data on exact costs.

Already, however, a radically new development may still further reduce the cost of newspaper made in the South. The U. S. Forest Products laboratory announces a new and cheaper process of making paper by using part gumwood and part pine. Gum constitutes about one-half of southern forests; what to do with it has been a problem.

But the paper of the future may contain no wood or vegetable material at all. A paper-like material known as "Alsisfilm" has been developed in the laboratories of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Made of Bentonite, a type of clay composed of aluminum silicate (hence the name "Alsisfilm"), the product would be of the greatest value for printing records. It is ageless; it will not discolor or become brittle, is resistant to water and is impervious to corrosive chemicals, acids and oil.

Jericho's Fire Called

Biggest of Antiquity

The greatest known conflagration in ancient history was the title given to the fire which destroyed the Biblical city of Jericho by Prof. John Garstang, archaeologist and excavator, when he spoke to Southern Methodist university students and faculty and members of the community course.

English, short-bearded Professor Garstang, member of the faculty of the University of Liverpool, told of the ancient history of Jericho, tracing from the early Stone age to its destruction by fire in 1400 B. C. Professor Garstang, who directed excavations of the site from 1928 to 1935, told of finding the earliest known statuary in the world among the ruins of the city, and of the city's growth from prehistoric times through the stone and bronze ages to its ultimate and during the times of the Pharaohs of Egypt.

The attempts of the ancient inhabitants in making pottery were found in abundance, he said, beginning with a mere hole scooped out of the floor of a dwelling and progressing through earthen jars and globes influenced by Babylonian and Egyptian civilizations.

Eskimos Are Resourceful

A tale of Eskimo craft and guile emanated from the Office of Indian Affairs recently.

Not so long ago two trading post proprietors in the Seward peninsula area had difficulty in transmitting latest fur prices to one another by radio. As soon as they began communicating prices to one another, the information was immediately picked up by both white and Eskimo trappers.

To solve the problem, the two men, who were partners, taught their Eskimo wives the Morse code. But the white trappers learned the code, too. Eskimo wives finally provided the solution.

They applied the Morse code to their native language.

That baffled even the shrewdest of radio eavesdroppers. The listening Eskimos couldn't figure out code and the listening whites couldn't decipher the Eskimo language, which put a stop immediately to the leak in the traders' system of communication.

Collects 200 Tiny Hats

One of Mrs. Daniel H. Grady's (Portage, Wis.) hobbies is collecting hats, none of which could be suitable for milady's headgear.

She saves everything from lithographs and first edition autographed books to rickety, century-old melodians, but one of her most cherished possessions is a collection of more than 200 miniature hats.

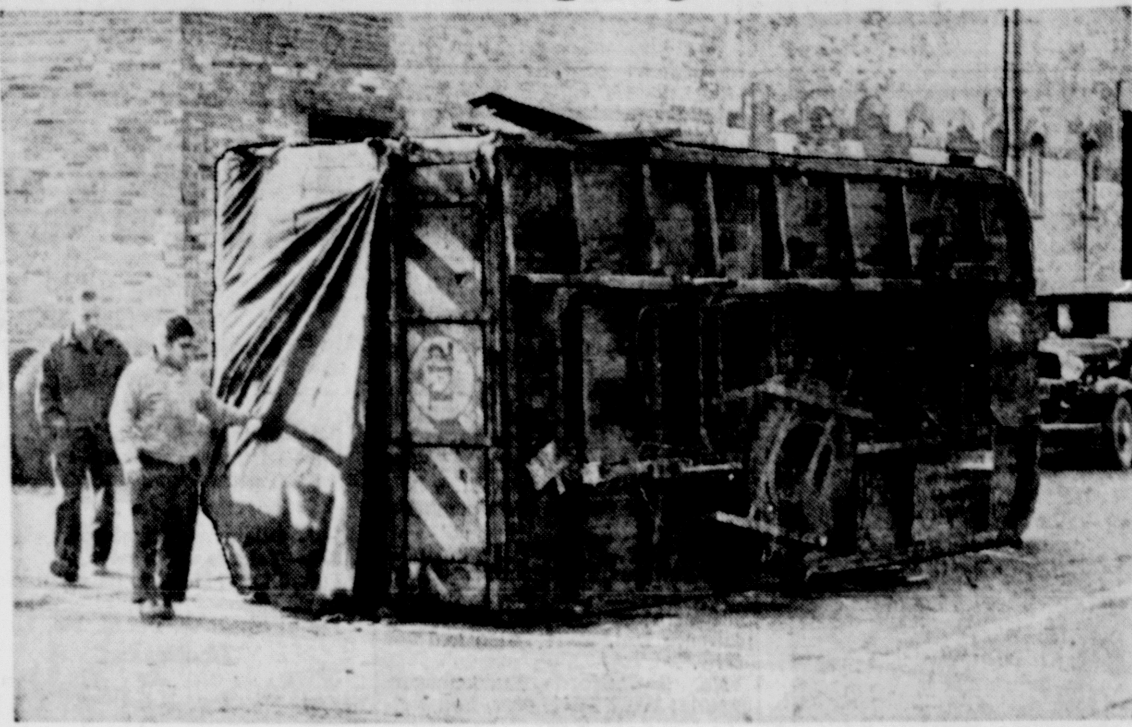

They are made of wood, many kinds of glass, clay and china. A century ago these hats served as toothpick dispensers, flower bowls and table decorations in some of the country's smartest homes.

One of them is a man's hat, once "worth" $4,000. It is a "topper" only three inches tall. On it is inscribed: "Made of national greenbacks, reduced and macerated at the United States Treasury. Estimated value of bills, $4,000."

Winds Have Veered

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Forest fire fighters, thankful because windstorms which caused many thousands of dollars of damage in western, central and northern New York had veered into Canada, bent their efforts today toward controlling four stubborn Adirondack blazes. Calming air in the wake of a violent storm driving northeast from the Texas hurricane belt and a forecast of fair to cloudy and cooler weather today promised to aid the forest workers.

Truck Breaks Spring, Overturns

Freeman Photo

Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning north bound traffic over East Chester street, near Broadway, was slowed up when a trailer and truck upset near the former Ulster & Delaware railroad crossing. No personal injuries were reported, but the machine was damaged. The trailer truck was being operated by Claude Ward of Little Falls, and is owned by the Oneida Motor Freight, Inc. of New York. The accident, according to the police report, was caused by the breaking of a spring on the trailer.

HIGHLAND

Women's Club Meets

Highland, Sept. 26—A supper meeting opened the season for the Women's Club of Southern Ulster Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schmidt. The supper was served on a long table on the porch. Following that the group gathered in the parlor for a welcome by the president, Mrs. A. L. LeFevre, who turned the program over to Mrs. John J. Gaffney. Mrs. Gaffney introduced the speaker, Assemblyman John F. Wadlin. Current legislation proved an interesting subject as conducted by Mr. Wadlin, who described the selection of juries each year by the supervisor, town clerk and assessors and the proposed new law whereby a commissioner will have a choice in the selecting of grand jurors. Following this Mr. Wadlin was asked concerning the milk laws governing the serving of raw milk in the home where there are paying guests, the possibility of having religious instruction in schools, bridge tolls, lighting for village and state property. The October meeting will be held with the president at her home in Esopus. Present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. L. LeFevre, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wadlin, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gaffney, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Coons, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schmidt, Mrs. Fred B. Schmidt, Mrs. Susan K. Ploss, Mrs. Vincent Lyons, Mrs. James Callahan, Mrs. Jesse Alexander, Mrs. James R. Swift, Mrs. Joseph Maroldt, Miss Edna Curry, Miss Eliza Raymond and Mr. and Mrs. LeFevre's guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dolle of Queens Village, L. I.

Highland, Sept. 26—The annual reception given by the Parent-Teacher Association to the faculty of the high school is to be held in the school auditorium Monday evening, September 29, at 8 o'clock. The welcome will be extended by the president, Mrs. William Coy, who will introduce Mrs. Jesse D. Rose, as president of the Board of Education. Principal A. Herbert Campbell will introduce the faculty. Mrs. Edison Dimsey as chairman of entertainment will be assisted by Mrs. Francis Sherow with the games and Mrs. Harry Thorne in the singing. The hospitality committee, Mrs. Luther Filkins and Mrs. Anthony Pampinella, will serve refreshments. The membership drive is now on directed by Mrs. Dimsey.

Village Notes

Highland, Sept. 26—A group of members of the Mission Circle will attend the coaching conference at Salt Point Thursday.

Mrs. Edison Dimsey, Sr. spent last week with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Quick at West Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merte spent the past week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crooks at East Orange, N. J.

Outright Repeal Of Neutrality Is Opposed at Capitol

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Administration lieutenants in Congress were reported today to have rejected a proposal for outright repeal of the neutrality act and to be ready to work instead for legislation making vital revisions.

The repeal proposal was introduced yesterday by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.), a consistent administration supporter. McKellar, who told the Senate that the neutrality law established a policy which "no great nation like ours can indulge in," said today he had acted entirely on his own responsibility. He added he did not know whether the administration would approve complete repeal of the neutrality law.

One well-advised leader told reporters that McKellar's measure was not acceptable to the administration. He said the legislation recommended by President Roosevelt next week probably would follow the lines indicated Wednesday by chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Connally suggested that the neutrality law be amended to permit the arming of American ships and to allow them to enter presently-forbidden belligerent ports and combat zones.

The Texas Senator declared that some provisions of the neutrality law—such as that granting the government control over munitions exports—should be retained.

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.), meanwhile, told reporters that he favored either complete repeal or substantial modification of the neutrality law.

It generally was assumed that President Roosevelt would discuss the entire question of neutrality repeal or revision with his congressional leaders next Monday.

To Resume Meetings

Following the summer vacation period the Service Club of the Rondout Presbyterian Church will hold its opening fall meeting on Monday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Margaret Ingalsbe on Washington avenue.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman will be the guest speaker and will discuss home defense activities. All of the club members are requested to bring a guest with them to the meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Ayres and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mellor returned Wednesday afternoon from a 10-day southern motor trip.

Bank Call Issued

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The comptroller of the currency today issued a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business Wednesday, September 24. The Comptroller's order applied to all national banks. The federal reserve board issued a similar call for condition reports from state banks belonging to the federal reserve system, bringing the total of banks affected to 6,556. The thousands of other state banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation were not asked to report. That agency issues bank calls only twice a year.

Maroon Gridders Meet Amsterdam Tonight Under Lights

Non-DUSO League Game at Stadium Opens 1941 Season

2,000 Fans Are Expected to Witness First K.H.S. Home Game Under New Floodlights

Coach Tommy Weems' 1941 edition of the Kingston High School football team will make its debut tonight at municipal stadium in a non-DUSO affair with Amsterdam under the floodlights. It will be Kingston's first home night grid clash. Game time is 8:15 o'clock.

Middletown, tabbed as the real threat to win the DUSO League crown this fall, also gets under way tonight in an arclight feature at Wilson Field in Middletown against Ossining.

Upwards of 2,000 spectators are expected to attend the game this evening at the stadium which is Kingston High School's first home after-dark tussle of the history of the school. Another night game has been arranged between Middletown and the Maroon at the stadium Friday evening, October 17.

The new lighting system, which proved successful for the Kingston Recreations during the past summer, will throw plenty of light on the gridiron tonight as these two clubs tangle in another tussle of their series. Last year, Kingston, with a well-balanced squad, blanketed Amsterdam by 15 to 0.

Interest in Game

Despite the fact that Kingston is considered the weakest team in the DUSO League race this fall, plenty of interest has been manifested for tonight's arclight attraction. The new lighting system has been the talk of many sports experts and fans ever since its introduction at the uptown ball park and now with the football season back, the many baseball fans who saw this summer's games, will undoubtedly return and give their support to the activities of the Maroon and White gridders.

At the start of practice this year Coach Weems found only two veterans returning from the 1940 squad, Bud Ellsworth and Harry Stahl, guard and end respectively. Out of these two stalwarts the Maroon mentor hopes to rebuild a formidable club and one which will carry on the tradition of former Kingston High School eleven.

It has been a long drive for Weems and his aides in trying to bring the athletes around to a first-rate club. Outside of Stahl and Ellsworth they have had to seek into the material coming up from the second stringers of 1940. Of course, Duso competition and competition which exists between jayvee squads is quite different.

So now it's just a matter of a few hours before the probable future of the Kingston High School grid team is told. Should the Maroon and White molekinners look satisfactory tonight against this tough Amsterdam unit, the prospects of going through a fairly successful season will appear rather bright.

In tonight's night attraction Tommy Weems will send Harry Stahl and Leland Boice to the flanks, Joe Clousi and Al Salzman to the tackle slots, Bud Ellsworth and Joe Clarke to the guard positions. Jiggs McLaughlin is slated to start at the pivot spot. In the backfield, all new men as far as varsity material is concerned, will start. Ed Luedtke will work at the quarter back slot, Flick and Johnny Rowland at the halves and Lou Salzman in the tail back.

Following are the lineups:

Robinson Flashes Late Rush to Get Win Over Servo

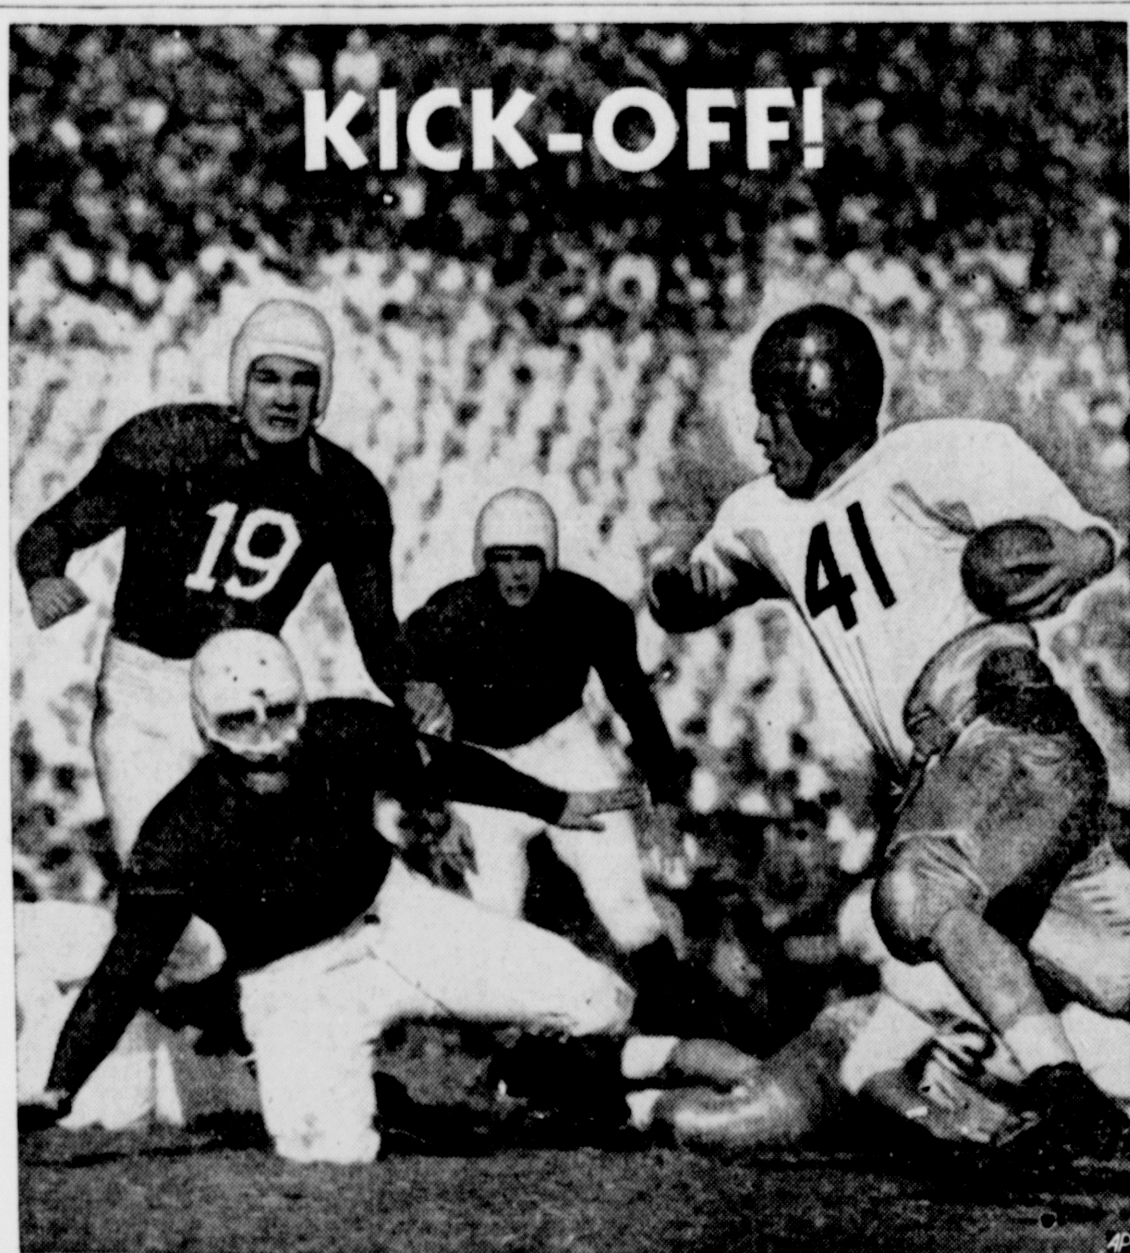

Last Two Rounds Save Lightweight Who Is Headed for Crown; Decision Boomed

Philadelphia, Sept. 26 (AP)—Ray "Sugar" Robinson, who many persons believe will be the next lightweight champion, is still undefeated as a professional but his most recent victim, Marty Servo (Mario Severino), almost turned the tables.

The Brooklyn negro and Servo, also unbeaten but not as well known as Robinson, battled through 10 rounds before 10,000 at Convention Hall last night before Robinson won the decision.

That in itself was a moral victory for Servo, a lad from Schenectady, N. Y., for Robinson has been knocking out his opponents with regularity. In fact Servo, a pre-fight 5 to 1 underdog, took everything Robinson had to offer and the negro got the nod only by coming from behind in the last two rounds.

Weighing 139½ pounds to Robinson's 141, Servo concentrated on a body attack. He slipped to one knee in the seventh but was up immediately for no count. At the

Hitting Pitcher

Stan Goletz, southpaw hurler the White Sox purchased from Oklahoma City, is carrying on the hitting tradition long established by Comiskey hurlers. Stan had such a good batting record in the Texas League that the hit-starved manager, Jimmie Dykes, has used him as a pinch batter. And Stan came through with three hits in four appearances.

Back in 1942

Orval Grove, big right handed rookie hurler the White Sox farmed out to Shreveport this season, filed notice that he'll be in the fight for a regular berth in 1942 by winning seventeen while losing only seven in the Texas League.

Recreations Dine Saturday Evening At Williams Lake

Check for First Year's Bond Issue Will Be Presented; to Make Honors

The Kingston Recreation baseball club, which recently ended a successful season, will bring the curtain down to an official close Saturday evening at Williams Lake when the second annual banquet will be held at 7 o'clock.

It will be another occasion at which time the players of the club, newspaper writers and broadcasters will be honored by the Recreations. A few weeks ago the Recs ended their season at municipal stadium with a gala Booster Night.

Speakers for the function tomorrow evening will be Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman and Sidney Lutzn, who will represent the recreation department; Ed Coughlin, on behalf of the club itself, Manager Joe Hoffman and possibly a few others. Ad Jones will present the check covering payment of the first year's bond issue on the lights. Charles Tiano will act as master of ceremonies.

Members of the board of directors also will attend the event including Nick Kasich, Ad Jones, Ed Coughlin, Jack Robins and Paul Zucca. Bill McDaniels, custodian of the stadium, the man responsible for keeping the playing field in perfect shape for the Recs, and Bill Scully, Dick Dulin and Bill Murphy, the umpires, also will attend.

It was reported that all of the out-of-town Rec players—Chuck Yanni, Eddie Sabo, Billy Ostrom, Buddy Van Herper, Ralph Coleman and "Whitey" Kowalek would attend. Also the local players, Vince Stoll, Bing Van Eten, Andy Cough, Bob Bush, Charlie Neff, Mac Tiano, Jimmy Ashdown and Bill Thomas.

No Traveling Time Needed for Series

All Games Will Begin at 1:30 P. M. (E.S.T.)

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Clinch-ing of the National League pennant by the Brooklyn Dodgers will allow the World Series to be reeled off without any time out for travel.

The schedule as announced by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis:

October 1 and 2 at Yankee Stadium.
October 3, 4 and 5 at Ebbets Field.

October 6 and 8 at Yankee Stadium.
The one-day intermission after the sixth game is to allow time for distribution of tickets for the seventh contest, if the series goes the limit.

All games will start at 1:30 p. m. (eastern standard time).

Sports Roundup

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

(By The Associated Press)
New York, Sept. 26 (The Special News Service)—Over in Brooklyn they're insisting that it wasn't a hurricane at all that struck Texas—only a concerted sigh of relief from Dodger fans throughout the country when they realized the bums were safely "in."
It wasn't anything compared with the storm that hit Flatbush and its environs last night. . . . The Brooklyn Eagle splashed it all over the front page in two words. "We Win" and nobody had to ask what that meant. . . . Newsboys all over town doubled their orders and then told their regular customers they'd better speak for one in advance if they wanted to read all about it in the morning. . . . Larry MacPhail bused down and cried when Joe Medwick phoned him to congratulate him, but he didn't weaken on his decision that the players had to keep out of the victory celebration planned for tomorrow. So the dinner was called off. . . . It's the fans' serenade anyway. They haven't had one in Brooklyn for 21 years while eight Dodger players and Coach Chuck Dressen have had world series experience. . . . Now instead of "Wait till next year" the boys are hollering, "Wait till next Wednesday."

Take a Chance Dept.
Football special for Friday is Hapes and Howious to hit Hoyas hard—or ole Miss can't miss. . . . This dept. also likes Temple over Kansas, Denver to beat Iowa State, but not by much, and Washington State over U.C.L.A. . . . More tomorrow if tonight's results aren't disheartening.

Today's Guest Star
Bob Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "In the little red book of baseball, there is a section devoted to knotty problems. The Cleveland Indians should be included."

Cleaning the Cuff
Manager Julian Black figures that about $7,000 of Joe Louis' income will go to pay for three weeks' training at Greenwood Lake although the gate for his camp exhibition covers part of it. . . . Mickey Walker is closing the doors of his Poughkeepsie, N. Y., restaurant but plans to open one in his home town, Elizabeth, N. J., before he starts his winter refueling chores. . . . When Bernie Barman went to see his son, Billy, play for St. Paul Academy the other night he almost missed the big play—Billy's run with an intercepted pass—because the kids kept him so busy giving out autographs. . . . Hank Leiber is back home in Tucson, Ariz., with orders to rest for six months. . . . Notre Dame has banned portable radios and movie cameras at its home games this season. . . . Bill (Bobo) Spencer, Missouri's crack pitcher, warmed up the other day by booting 35 in a row, then back after a brother to kick 36 straight. . . . A reader from Fort George G. Meade, Md., wants to know if any other small college can match the U. of Miami's record of sending up four players to the National Football League in three years. . . . Will Connolly of the San Francisco Chronicle suggests unlimited substitutions for fans as well as players in case some of the customers can't stay until the games are over.

Last Laugh
An entry in a pet show at West-hampton, N. Y., the other day was a champion Great Dane, owned by Harkness Edwards and entered by Edwards' eight-year-old son. . . . When the kid came home proudly displaying the red second-place ribbon, Edwards asked what dogs had topped the big fellow that had been cleaning up on the show circuit. . . . "Dog?" replied the kid. "We were beaten by a pig."

Softball on Sunday
St. Mary's softball team, winners of the Catholic Church League, will meet the Gallettas, champs of the Sauersties City League, Sunday afternoon at Hasbrouck Park in a double-header. The first game will start at 2 o'clock. Albany and Amato will work for the Saints. Spada is due to do the flinging for the visitors.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, long the crown princes of baseball, are the new kings of the National League. Long live the kings!

The kids from Kings county, New York (the same as the borough of Brooklyn to everybody except the District Attorney) came through in royal glory at Boston yesterday with a 6-0 conquest of the Braves and clinched their first pennant in 21 years.

The St. Louis Cardinals cooperated by losing a 3-1 decision at Pittsburgh to bring the most strenuous championship struggle in recent years to a sudden stop. As a result of the victory and defeat, the Redbirds were left 2½ games behind the Dodgers with each club having two games left to play.

The standings today:
W L Pct. GB TP
Brooklyn .. 99 53 .651 ... 2
St. Louis .. 96 55 .636 2½ 2

Somewhat the session at Boston, perfectly played on the part of the Dodgers, seemed like an anti-climax. The Bums had had to battle for every inch in their furious, often frantic, foray against the western clubs of the league and even against the lowly Phillies.

Can Keep Time
In Boston yesterday they knew they were in and were just marking time. But they certainly can keep time. They never missed a beat.

Whitlow Wyatt, their friendly, baldish pitching ace, produced a masterful five-hit performance to achieve his seventh shut out and 22nd victory of the season. His teammates loosed a vigorous offensive which young Pete Reiser climaxed with a two-run seventh-inning homer. The game had been nailed down, however, when Brooklyn bagged one run in each of the first three innings.

Max Butcher, a big West Virginia mountaineer who once was with the Dodgers, took care of crimping the Cardinals. He held the Redbirds to five hits, their only run was forced in with a walk. The Pirates plastered Ernie White with defeat through rookie Bill Cox's triple for a run in the third and Elbie Fletcher's homer with one on in the sixth.

Both clubs have open dates today—time for the Dodgers to celebrate and for the Cardinals to lick their wounds. Tomorrow and Sunday the Cards clash again with the Chicago Cubs and the Dodgers finish against the Phils.

Players Will Rest
All along the Brooks have had a hankering to win 100 games, but they acknowledged on their return home last night that they didn't care much about that goal now. Lefty Larry French was scheduled to start tomorrow's contest. As many of the Brooklyn regulars as possible will be rested for the opening of the World Series with the New York Yankees next Wednesday.

In the other games yesterday the Cincinnati Reds stormed to a 6-0 decision over the Cubs and the New York Giants squeezed to a 3-2 victory over the Phillies. Cincinnati's win came on the two-hit hurling of rookie Ray Starr. The Giants' triumph resulted from Billy Jurgens' two-run triple in the seventh and Johnny McCarthy's single with the bases loaded in the ninth. For six innings the New Yorkers were held hitless by John Podajny.

Dodgers Play Sunday
The Wilbur Dodgers will play the Ashokan club at the Boiceville diamond Sunday afternoon. "Pucker" Davis and Ed Ashdown will form the battery for the Dodgers.

Even With Yankees
Detroit is the only American League club to acquire at least an even break with the Yankees, the Tigers winning 11 games. Bridges and Trout each won two with no defeats. Rowe one. Newhouse broke even in four games, Gorsica split in two games. Newsom won two out of six and Benton one out of five.

American Leaguers Play
Brooklyn will take the field with seven former American Leaguers, pitchers Wyatt, Hamlin, Drake and Allen; outfielders Walker and Wassell and manager-shortstop Durocher. In addition, shortstop Reese was the property of the Boston Red Sox farm at Louisville.

Dodger Players Have Great Party in Honor of Victory

MacPhail Gets Supply of Champagne for Victors; Enroute to New York; Wreck Train Car

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Brooklyn went batty over its new National League pennant today but nobody was nearly as delirious as the Dodgers themselves.

During the four hours it took their special train to make the trip home from Boston last night they steamed up the greatest celebration any baseball team ever has had for the clinching of a championship.

President Larry MacPhail, who had remained here to pass out World Series tickets, set up the party with a telephone call to Boston stocking the train with champagne.

The wheels hardly had started rolling before the corks started popping—and by the time the effervescent entourage pulled into Grand Central station a little before midnight the Dodgers were hilarious and the train was a wreck.

Dressen Is Disrobed
Somebody thought it would be a grand idea to rip the shirt off Coach Charley Dressen and before his chummy companions were finished they had him almost in the nude. Then they started on each other and more shirts were ripped to pieces within a few minutes than a laundry could do in 10 years.

All the blinds in the dining car were torn down, too, but that came later.

Pee-wee Reese and Pistol Pete Reiser prowled up and down the aisles squirting everybody with champagne, until the kids were tipped off that that was something to drink. Then they turned to shampooing the porters and waiters with creamed spinach.

This went on for hours and for miles and miles—but you get the general idea.

It was the unbelievable end to an unimaginable tour that lasted for two weeks and was more like a traveling circus than a ball club on a business trip.

The Dodgers went west September 8 in a streamlined special train, with every player having a room to himself.

Pick Up Followers

As they rolled around the country they picked up a curious collection of followers. For the past several days of their trip the party included, besides a score of newspapermen and photographers, one Brooklyn undertaker and two assistants, two bookmakers, a well-known brain specialist, Tony Martin, the screen and radio singer, wives of several players and the child of one, and various deep-dyed Flatbush fans.

The whole gang stepped off the train headlong into a worshipful welcome from some 7,000 fans who packed Grand Central Terminal for a glimpse of the conquering heroes.

Keller's Return to Yankee Field Will Give American League Champs Big Edge

Without Keller, Yanks' Patrol Would Be 2nd to Dodgers; All Tough Hitters

(This is the third of a series comparing the prospective World Series rivals)

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A true comparison of world series outfields is difficult to obtain as long as Charley (King Kong) Keller is limping around on an injured ankle and doesn't know, himself, whether he will be ready to take the field for the Yankees next Wednesday or merely make an occasional appearance as a pinch-hitter.

If Keller is ready to start the series, as seems highly doubtful, then the American League champions will hold a decided superiority over the Brooklyn Dodgers. If the Yankees have to start the fading George Selkirk in left field, then it would be necessary to cast a hesitant vote for Brooklyn's well-rounded trio of 300 hitters—Joe Medwick, Pete Reiser and Dixie Walker.

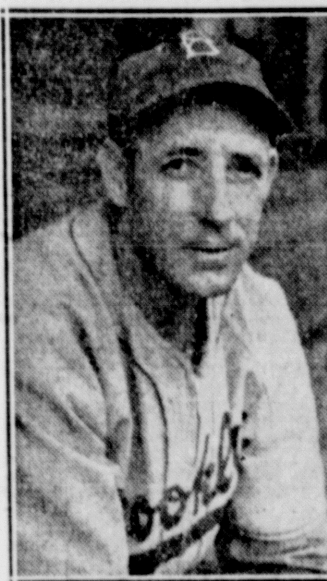

The latter would be a perilous decision to make, because, after all, Joe DiMaggio, baseball's greatest all-around star, still is sound of wind and limb and playing center field for the Yankees. But without Keller to follow him in the batting order and pound his own prodigious blows off the fences and into the stands, DiMaggio's threat to the enemy becomes sharply curtailed.

The two of them while playing together this season have comprised possibly the most effective one-two punch baseball has seen since Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig ganged up on opposing pitchers. But when DiMag went out late in the season with a twisted ankle it was immediately noticed that Keller was not as effective with the willow, and it seems a fair assumption that it would work both ways. Two such players perhaps unconsciously become a team, each absorbing inspiration from the other.

Henrich No Slouch
The third member of the Yankee outfield, Tommy Henrich, is no slouch. Through yesterday he had blasted 31 home runs, compared to 30 for DiMaggio and 33 for Keller. He is almost as great a ball hawk as DiMaggio and owns perhaps the most feared throwing arm of any right-fielder in the game. Men who have seen all the great outfielders do not hesitate to compare the Yankee trio favorably with any of them. Take Keller out, though, and there remains only two-thirds of this combination. In that case we would have to like the Dodgers.

It is a strangely assorted threesome the Dodgers have, yet the best the National League has gathered together for some years. The veteran Dixie Walker in right field, almost forgotten in training camp, has come up to rap a firm .308 and is the outstanding idol of Flatbush fans. Pete Reiser, the fleet freshman, is hitting a terrific .340 and must be counted the outstanding center-fielder in the National League since Terry Moore of the Cardinals was beaned. Joe Medwick, the $150,000 flop of last season, is playing a scrappy,

WHITLOW WYATT

One of the most respected pitchers in the National League, Whitlow Wyatt, pitched a game he'll never forget yesterday afternoon in Boston. The veteran Brooklyn Dodger moundsman hurled his club into the World Series by blanking the Braves 6 to 0 on five hits as the Pirates were trimming St. Louis. It was Wyatt's 22nd victory of the year. In all probability, Wyatt, former American League tosser, will get the nod from Leo Durocher to hurl the first game of the World Series.

aggressive left field and hitting a solid .315.

That is a lot of good, consistent hitting to have in one outfield. The drawbacks are that Walker's arm is not so good and that Reiser is just a kid coming up to his first world series. Still, it looks like a better combination from here than the Yankees would be with Selkirk in left. George simply doesn't have it any more, and Henrich too often is stopped completely by really good pitching—the kind the Dodgers have a great deal of the time.

Brooklyn Has Power
While by no means the distance clouters that the Yankees are, the Brooklyn outfielders are not entirely bereft of power. Medwick has hit 18 homers and 40 other extra-basers. Reiser has 14 homers, 17 triples and 40 doubles.

Walker has been known to connect in the pinches, too.

So, it's the Yankees' honor if Charley Keller even limps out to left field when the ump's says play ball next Wednesday. But if this slugger broods in the dugout, we'll take Brooklyn's outfield. We'll even take Brooklyn to win the series. The Yankees can't spare a hitter like King Kong.

Jones Is Impressive
James Murrell Jones, the boyish first sacker the White Sox bought from Shreveport, who led the Texas League in home runs, made five four sackers in four consecutive games, gathering two homers, a single and a double in one game at Dallas. During the off season, Jones has been prepping for aviation. However, he has, as yet to make a solo flight.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane M. Maben, widow of H. B. Maben, who died Tuesday, September 23, was held at the parlor of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Burial in Montrose cemetery. The services were conducted by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemol, pastor of the First Reformed Dutch Church. Wednesday evening Clinton Chapter, 445, Order of Eastern Stars, conducted services at the parlor with Worthy Matron, Mrs. Paul Jones in charge. Bearers were Paul Jones, Cyrus Carle, Arthur Keator and Gordon Craig.

Ellenville, Sept. 26.—Russell Braught died on Sunday at his home near Monticello after a long illness. Mr. Braught was born in Grahamsville February 28, 1878, the son of Louis S. and Sarah E. Lare Braught. Surviving are his wife, the former Laura Davies; one brother, Matthew, and three sons, Ira, in the U. S. Army, and Eldon and Clayton, both of Monticello. Funeral services were held on Wednesday at the Van Inwegen Funeral Home, the Rev. T. Elmer Cates officiating. Burial was in Rock Hill cemetery.

Ellenville, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Mary Worden Lakin, a native of Spring Glen, died at her home in Middle-town Saturday. She was born March 21, 1867, a daughter of James and Mary DeVoe Budd. She was a member of the Methodist Church of Spring Glen. Surviving are seven children, Mrs. Thomas Coons of Sparta, N. J., Mrs. George Slater of Colesville, Md., Otis and Royal of Middletown, Olive, at home, and George of Ogdensburg, 18 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held on Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the late residence. Burial was in the family plot in Phillipsport cemetery.

Rabbi Samuel Abraham, husband of Rose Horowitz Abraham, died yesterday afternoon at the Kingston Hospital after a short illness. He occupied a pulpit in the Beth Abraham Synagogue in Brooklyn and during the summer months he occupied a pulpit in the Granite Synagogue near Kerhonkson. The body was taken last evening by the Wolf Funeral Home at 8 o'clock to Granite where services were conducted by Rabbi Horowitz of Baltimore, Md., a relative of the deceased. The body was then taken to his home 2114 Strauss street, Brooklyn where services were held this morning at 11 o'clock. Burial was in Beth Abraham cemetery, Brooklyn.

At the Church of the Presentation at Port Ewen this morning at 9:30 o'clock a solemn requiem Mass was offered for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Mary E. Malia McDonald. The Rev. Michael Curley, C. S. S. R., was the celebrant; the Rev. William Barry, C. S. S. R., was deacon, and the Rev. Mark Kearney, C. S. S. R., was sub-deacon. The offertory Miss Ageline McNamee sang "Ave Vera," and at the conclusion of the Mass sang "Sweet Saviour Bless Us Ere We Go." Last evening scores of relatives, friends and former neighbors visited the funeral home and the Rosary was recited for the repose of her soul by the Rev. Michael Curley, C. S. S. R. There were several floral tributes and Mass cards testifying to the high esteem in which she was held in this community. The bearers were John and James Ward, Patrick Kane, Anthony Hines and Richard Donnelly and Daniel Fee. The final absolution was given by the Rev. Michael Curley, C. S. S. R., at the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Geochemical Prospecting For Underground Oil

Geophysical prospecting for oil (recording the underground travels of artificial, explosion-made earthquakes) is relatively new in petroleum technology; geochemical prospecting is newer still. The geochemists pick up samples of the surface soil at spaced intervals, e. g., every tenth of a mile, and analyze them for significant hydrocarbons. An American Chemical society publication declared that geochemical prospecting shows promise of being a more certain test for underground oil than artificial earthquake analysis.

A new method of exploring for metal-bearing ores, described at the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, is based on the discovery that plants growing over a metallic ore body contain more of the metal in their tissue than plants growing elsewhere. To smoke out hidden ores, leaves and bushes are burned to ash, and the ash is examined under spectroscopes for high metallic content.

Metallographer Oscar Edward Harder of Battelle Memorial Institute (Columbus, Ohio), working with Inland Steel company's research staff, has developed a lead-silver alloy (one part of lead to 500 parts of steel) which is just as strong as leadless steel, but can be machined 30 to 50 per cent faster for mass-production parts. The soft, tiny particles of lead in the alloy serve to lubricate the point where the tool cuts; the tool stays sharper longer, the machine runs faster.

General Electric's laboratories in Schenectady announced a new world's magnetic record. A piece of Alnico (aluminum, nickel, cobalt, iron), in a brass and iron assembly, air-gapped for maximum efficiency, lifted 4,450 times its own weight.

Protect Rare Sea Birds From Hunters' Guns

Since 1933, the Quebec government has given protection to the gannets, rare sea birds which inhabit Bonaventure island, just off the tip of the Gaspé peninsula. Once threatened with extinction by the guns of hunters, the island cliffs are now a sanctuary for countless thousands of the birds, whose breeding season extends from early in June until the end of August.

Gannets have wingspreads up to six feet and bright yellow beaks with red edges. They plunge into the sea after their prey from a height of 50 feet, seizing it below the water's surface. Although members of the pelican family, gannets have no oil ducts to protect their wings from the water. After diving for a fish, they must dry their wings. During the herring runs in Gaspé waters, the cliffs are white with gannets. The young gannet is fed with fermented fish—herring caught by the mother and carried for an entire day in her bill to allow fermentation to take place.

Freezing Hurts Winter Painting

Where paint is to be applied to new homes during winter, Federal Housing administration officials advise painters to make sure that the materials to be painted are dry. Where the painting is on the interior, heat should be maintained to assure continued drying.

All millwork to be painted should be primed before installation. In painting new plaster, the temperature should not be too high or otherwise blisters may develop.

Exterior painting should not be done if the surfaces of the materials are damp or wet within, immediately after rain, during rain or snow, or if rain or freezing weather is threatening. Oil paints may be safely applied at temperatures above 40 degrees F. Other kinds of coatings with rapidly evaporating thinners should be applied at higher temperatures.

Puerto Rico 'Rich Port'

The island of Puerto Rico, which was ceded to the United States after the Spanish-American war in 1898, means "rich port."

Puerto Rico is the only land under the American flag on which Columbus actually set foot (he discovered it on his second voyage in 1493). Although Puerto Rico is three times as large as Rhode Island, Texas is 77 times larger than Puerto Rico.

San Juan, capital of this West Indian isle, is one of the outstanding examples in the Western hemisphere of an old walled city. In the Cathedral of San Juan reposes the remains of Ponce de Leon, who founded the city in 1511 and was once governor of Puerto Rico. (As you know, he was the Spanish adventurer who died while seeking the Fountain of Youth.)

Sound Sleep Is Beauty Aid

Sound sleep is one of the most important fundamentals of real and lasting beauty, but it is oftentimes overlooked by women who would like to gain new beauty.

Although refreshing sleep can't be purchased and sold in pretty pink jars, it will do more to erase tired lines and put sparkle into weary eyes than most of the expensive creams and lotions. Beauty authorities agree that it also has a lot to do with the good posture that is a "must" for the woman who would gain or keep beauty. Fatigue and the "droopy" posture that it induces can overcome the strongest determination to correct a faulty posture.

Choctaws Sue For 4 Million

Mississippi Files a Petition Charging Government With Broken Faith.

JACKSON, MISS.—Some pale-faces high in the government of Mississippi have taken action in Washington to claim $4,000,000 for the state's Choctaw Indians.

Rep. Ross Collins and Attorney General Greek L. Rice say that amount is due the Indians from the federal government for the breaking of treaty obligations and "the gross wrongs of a century ago."

Representative Collins drafted a bill which would confer jurisdiction of the court of claims to determine the claims. The attorney general has filed a brief in behalf of the bill.

Some of the claims are to compensate for the government's failure to grant the Choctaws the lands to which they were entitled by the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, signed on September 27, 1830. Other claims involve the scrip and interest in property of the Choctaw nation said to be due the Indians under several acts of congress and treaties between the United States and the Choctaw nation.

Broken Pledges Alleged. Full of bitter and authenticated reports of broken pledges, the attorney general's brief charges officials with betrayals of these "illiterate and trustful people" who "depended largely upon the white man for a guidance in their relation to each other."

Repeatedly—the brief charges—the Choctaws were assured in formal treaties they would never again be asked to give up more of their lands, that they could govern themselves without molestation from the state. The treaty signed at Doak's Stand (which contained such promises) pledged that "the agreement will endure as long as the waters run, the trees grow and the sun shines."

Historical documents are quoted in the brief to show coercion of the Choctaws into signing the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek in Nottoway county and subsequent violation of the pact by the whites.

One of the treaty's clauses provided that the United States would supervise removal of the Indians to their new homes.

Story of Starvation Told. The brief quotes eyewitness accounts of suffering, starvation and death among the Choctaws trying to reach their new western homes. It charges the government with "shameful negligence" in its obligation to transport the Indians from Mississippi.

Who would get the claim money if the action is successful? It would go to the "Choctaws of the State of Mississippi," who are defined by the bill to include "reserves under the Treaty of September 27, 1830 (Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek), and their descendants; those persons who on July 1, 1902, were residents in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana, having not less than one-eighth Choctaw Indian blood, and their descendants, and such persons as were hereafter identified on any approved roll of Mississippi Choctaws and their descendants, and shall not include any persons who were enrolled on the final citizenship rolls of the Choctaw nation in Oklahoma."

Referring to legal technicalities advanced by the U. S. attorney general, the brief said, "This is a subject in which cold, legal rule and definitions of rights, according to American legal standards, should not prevail, but it is the high moral duty imposed upon the United States government to do justice to these Choctaw Indians."

Colorado Points Proudly To 49 14,000-Ft. Peaks

DENVER.—With Switzerland becoming inaccessible to tourists Colorado enthusiasts are quick to point out that the Rocky mountain state has more high peaks than the European country, anyway.

Switzerland has eight peaks above the 14,000-foot mark—Colorado has six times as many, 49. In area Colorado is seven times larger than Switzerland.

Although Pikes peak, elevation 14,100, is Colorado's most famous mountaintop, the state has 26 other peaks that tower above it.

French Submarine Is at Portsmouth

Surcouf, 4,300 Tons, Is at Base for Repairs

Washington, Sept. 26 (P)—The heaviest known submarine in the world, the 4,300-ton Surcouf, was disclosed officially today to be at Portsmouth, N. H.

The navy announced that the Surcouf, which was one of the number of French submarines whose crews decided to put in with the British after the fall of France, was in the Portsmouth harbor for repairs under the lease-act.

Also, the British submarine Parthian was reported at Portsmouth and the British destroyer Burnham, the former U. S. destroyer Aulick, at Boston, both for repairs.

The Surcouf is so big that it carries a small airplane along with 8 guns, 10 torpedo tubes and a crew of 150. It has a cruising radius estimated at 12,000 miles.

The ordinary submarine is about half the size of the Surcouf. While the heaviest, the Surcouf is not technically the largest submarine. It is exceeded slightly in length and beam by the new United States submarines Narwhal and Nautilus.

The announcement brought to 27 the total of British and Free French craft disclosed to be undergoing, or to have undergone, repairs in the United States. It was released in line with the navy's policy announced September 19 for sanctioning mention of the combatant craft in U. S. ports provided no mention is made of time of arrival or departure, length of stay, recent movements of the ship, or any other information helpful to hostile operations.

Crowds Cheer Duke

Washington, Sept. 26 (P)—Cheering crowds of clerks and stenographers greeted the Duke of Windsor today as he paid official calls on the Secretary of War Henry Stimson and Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal. His American-born duchess did not accompany him. The former King Edward VIII was hailed excitedly by hundreds of war and navy department employees who jammed the entrances to the buildings and blocked corridors in their anxiety to see the man who abdicated his throne for love and now is governor of the Bahamas.

Sprinkler Head Releases

Shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday evening one of the sprinkler heads on the loading platform of the F. B. Matthews Company on Thomas street went off. There was no fire. About an hour later the fire department was called for a grass fire on Trenton street, off Andrew street.

ROYAL VISITORS IN CAPITAL

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, arriving in Washington from the Bahamas en route to the Duke's western Canada ranch, paused for this portrait on the grand stairway at the British embassy. The Duke paid official calls at the White House and state department.

Duchess' 'Hair Do' Praised by Emile

Capital Hair Dresser Says Style 'Most Modern'

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Take it from Emile, the Duchess of Windsor has "the most modern hair do" obtainable, its principal characteristics being "up on each side and a part in the middle."

That is the way Emile described the style in which he and an assistant had dressed the dark locks of the duchess at the British embassy.

Emile is Emile Beauvais, a Washington hairdresser who told reporters that he was summoned to the embassy because he had dressed the former Wallis Warfield's hair for three years when she lived in the capital.

"Upsweep," Emile's assistant put in, was the correct description for the way the duchess' hair was done on the sides. At the back—soft curls to the neckline.

Emile said that he was given only 25 minutes yesterday to prepare the duchess' hair for two receptions and a dinner party. He worked on one side, he explained, and his assistant the other.

When the duke came in Emile took time out to shake hands and talk of his experiences as a French soldier in the World War.

"To me she hasn't changed," Emile remarked enthusiastically. "She is just as beautiful as she was 10 to 15 years ago when I dressed her hair. She had long hair then, parted in the middle, just as today. Of course, now it is bobbed."

He sighed.

"Gray hair? Oh, no. It is remarkable. Very few gray hairs if any. I didn't see any."

No wave-set was required to keep the duchess' trim curls in shape, only a bit of oil to give it gloss.

Over 300 fines were imposed in one day on store keepers of Buenos Aires, Argentina, who broke anti-profiteering laws.
